Washington —P— Nelson A. Rockefeller told investigating senators today a drastic overhaul of defense machinery and goals must be taken now to assure our survival.

He said this was the unanimous opinion of some 50 national leaders who participated in a study of the present defense mechanisms and long-range policies.

Rockefeller testified before the senate preparedness subcommittee which has been probing deep into U.S. missile, satellite and weapons programs. The inquiry was touched off by the success of Soviet sputniks and indications the Russians are ahead of this country in rocketry.

Rockefeller said this nation, as a leader of the free world, faces critical decisions in the next 10 to 15 years in the field of international security.

He said the study panel set up by a family foundation he heads will have later reports on political, economic and human aspects of these problems.

Panel Made Study

Chairman Lyndon B. Johnson introducing Rockefeller to the subcommittee, said many of the Rockefeller recommendations for strengthening defenses already had been put into operation.

Rockefeller explained that the non-governmental study was made by a panel of 30 members, which he said represented a cross section of national leadership. He said its conclusions represented the thinking of more than 50 persons.

The report, issued last week, urged greater unification of the armed services in part through a recasting of the role of the joint chiefs of staff.

Rockefeller said the panel felt that the United States could afford increased spending for such things as education and health and still cure its military deficiencies.

But he said the major effort must be concentrated now on meeting what he called "two somber thrusts"—one coming from the communist push for world domination and the other from a rapidly developing weapons technology which could destroy mankind.

Rockefeller said the panel felt the United States in the next year or two would have the capacity to meet any Russian military moves.

But the balance of military power is shifting toward the Soviets, he said, adding that the situation a year or two hence would depend on steps which this country takes immediately.

Johnny Dio Starts Extortion Sentence

New York —P— Labor racketeer Johnny Dio, attired as if he were about to appear in a fashion show, was taken to Sing Sing prison today to begin serving a 15 to 30 year extortion sentence.

Dio was led in handcuffs from a jail cell to a prison van. The most striking part of his attire was an expensive looking tweed jacket with a blue corduroy collar.

Manacled with him was his partner-in-crime, John J. McNamara, president of Local 235 of the teamsters union, who received a 5 to 10 years term.

4 Indians Held At Green Bay on Varied Charges

Robbery, Assault,
Rape, Auto Theft
Possible Counts

Green Bay —P— Four Indians were in custody today—two in a Green Bay hospital, two in the Shawano county jail—while authorities of several counties mulled over possible charges of rape, assault, auto theft, armed robbery and a variety of other offenses.

Held at Shawano were Curtis Crowe, 25, and Robert Wynos, 21. Hospitalized at Green Bay were Robert Peters, 18, and Earl Morgan, 28. All are from Neopit, on the Menominee Reservation.

Shawano County Sheriff Hugh Baker said that the spree started about 7 o'clock Thursday night when the four drove into the yard of Melvin Engbretson's farm in the town of Green Valley.

Farmer Beaten, Robbed

When Engbretson found them rummaging around in a tool shed, they attacked and beat him, then chased him into his home, beat him again, took a wallet containing $75-$80, and knocked down his wife in the fracas. However, Mrs. Engbretson managed to get out of the house and drove to a neighbor's house to call the sheriff.

Meanwhile, the four left the Engbretson farm and a short distance away dropped Peters and Morgan at another farm. The two entered that house and found a 25-year-old girl and her five-year-old sister. They raped the older girl and molested the child, then ransacked the house for valuables. They found a silver dollar collection and a watch, then left the farm on foot.

Captured Near Gillett

Meanwhile, Crowe and Wynos were flushed by a squad car and caught near Gillett by deputies.

Peters and Morgan stole a pick-up truck at Green Valley, drove to Stiles Junction in Oconto county where they stole a station wagon and headed south toward Green Bay. A Brown county squad spotted them near Duck Creek and gave chase. Peters lost control of the station wagon, hit a utility pole, a tree and another car. The wrecked wagon burst into flames. Morgan was pinned in the burning wreckage for a time but was freed by Green Bay firemen.

He and Peters were taken to the hospital with minor injuries.

3 U. S. Navy Men Die In Blast on Carrier

Yokosuka, Japan —P— Three U. S. Navy men were killed and two critically injured today in a catapult explosion aboard the attack aircraft carrier Kearsarge, the navy said. The explosion occurred as the 41,000-ton carrier prepared to launch planes in a routine training exercise off the south coast of Honshu island, Japan.

Boy Stabbed to Death During Argument

Abilene, Texas —P— A 15-year-old junior high school boy was stabbed to death last night in an argument with another teenager.

Detectives J. H. Roberts and W. T. Davis, Jr., identified the victim as Norman Eugene Rhymes. Police held a 13-year-old Latin-American youth in juvenile ward. No charges were filed immediately.

Democrats Ask Ike for Blueprints of Program

Johnson Talks of 'Worthy
Objectives' but Wants To Have Specific Outline

Washington —P— Democrats called on President Eisenhower today to back up with specific blueprints for action the 8-point program he laid before congress yesterday.

Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas set the show-me tone of reaction to the proposals Eisenhower outlined in his State of the Union message. Eisenhower said they are needed to meet the growing space era threat of what he repeatedly called "communist imperialism."

"The president has in general terms set forth some worthy objectives," Johnson said. "He has called for strengthening of our allies, greater understanding and commerce between nations and attempts to bring peace to the world. These have long been Democratic objectives."

"Now we are waiting for his blueprints for meeting those objectives. As soon as he lays them down, our committees will promptly consider his recommendations."

Republicans Land Speech

Although Johnson and Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Texas) praised Eisenhower's speech yesterday, there was mounting evidence of Democratic disappointment that Eisenhower did not make any spectacular proposals for an immediate buildup in American military might.

An analysis of the president's proposals circulated among Democratic senators said that basically the message was "long on proposals and short on performance."

"Even the program to step up national security boils down to pumping a little more money into existing projects and promising vaguely to reorganize the defense structure," the analysis said.

Republicans were practically unanimous in their praise of Eisenhower's personally delivered message. Some Democrats lauded it but many of them were critical.

Eisenhower was interrupted 41 times by applause during the 44 minutes he addressed a joint session of congress in the house chamber. Republicans provided most of the applause, but Democrats often joined in and occasionally led the outbursts.

The show of enthusiasm, like the world situation, differed sharply from that at the start of 1957. Only five rounds of applause interrupted the entire 1957 address to congress.

More Authority Urged

The White House described Eisenhower as "very pleased" with the reception he received yesterday.

Rayburn said he was "glad to know the president is alive to what the American people are disturbed about and this is the bickering and dissension among the services in the Pentagon."

"I hope he gives Secretary McElroy the authority to get

Gates Says He Will
Quit Communist Party

New York —P— John Gates, editor of the American Communist party's daily newspaper, and a leader in the party many years, announced today he is quitting the party immediately.

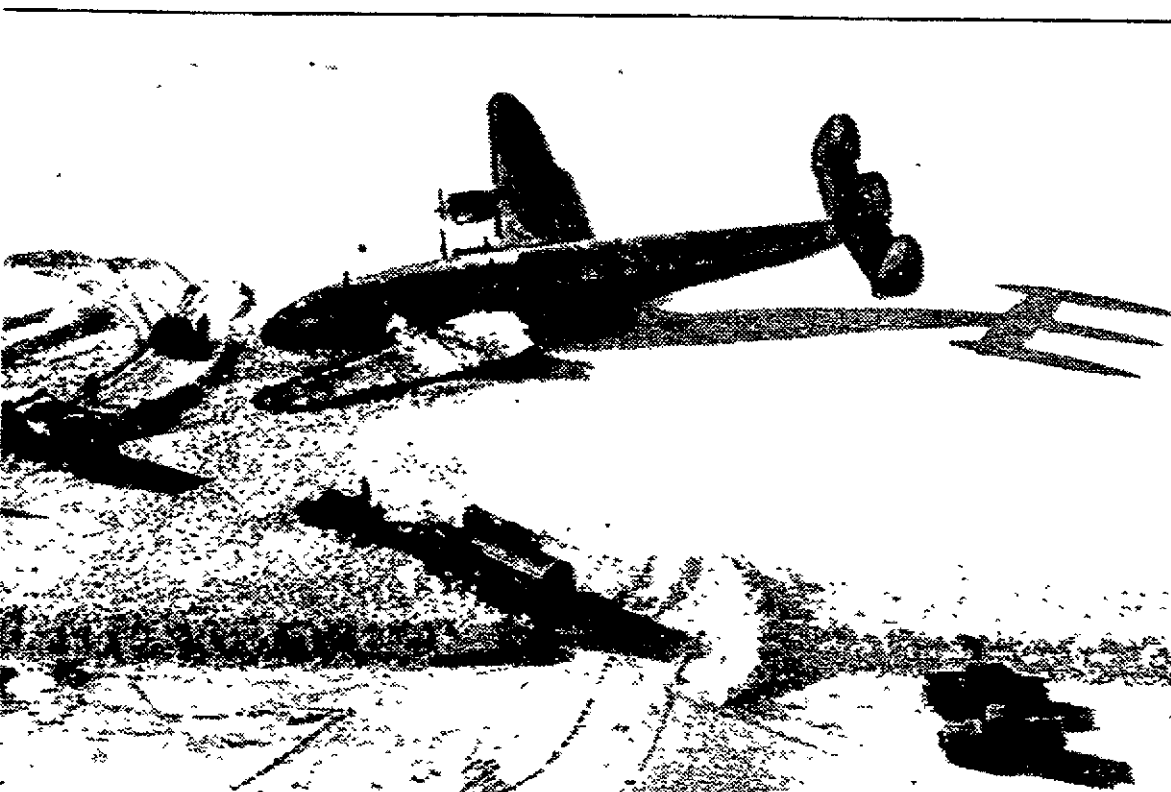

At a news conference he asserted that "the Communist party ceases to be an effective force for democracy, peace and socialism in the United States."

A Gates faction in the party has for some time been involved in a bitter conflict with another group headed by party chieftain William Z. Foster. The Foster forces, in a dominant party position, a few days ago ordered suspension of the party paper, the Daily Worker.

Then a haze enveloped the party. The Atlas was just a missile started to get out of control shortly after launching the beach. The third launching Dec. 17 was successful over a 600-mile range. The air force shot was lowered and it appeared that a "hold" had been called in the countdown toward the zero hour, originally set for the same 10 o'clock.

Forty-eight minutes later, the Atlas blasted off with the red ball down. It was the first time such a sneak shot had ever been tried.

In Washington, the Pentagon reported the test came off "successfully."

13 Newsmen Quit Red Paper

'Darkness and Bloodstains' Come
Under Their Attack

Hong Kong —P— Red China has admitted that no less than 13 staff members of its official organ, the Peiping Peoples Daily, have turned out to be anti-communist.

One editor, the Peiping paper said, described communism as "a society full of darkness and bloodstains."

The Jan. 5 issue of the paper, just received in Hong Kong, said the most important offender within the editorial fold was Chiang Yuan-chuang, director of the eastern division of the editorial department. The rest were editors and reporters.

"These rightists were actively engaged in anti-party, anti-socialist crimes," the paper said. "They slandered the communist party leadership of the paper and described it as 'imperialism.' They also opposed publication of party communications, directives and documents on the ground this would turn the paper into a billboard."

Bishop Denounced

The Sunday Examiner, Hong Kong Catholic weekly, reported meanwhile that Bishop Dominic Tang of Canton underwent a public denunciation before the Chinese Catholic Patriotic society in December.

The society was formed last year to separate Chinese Catholics from Rome. The Vatican has disavowed it.

The weekly said the chief speaker against the bishop was John Fong Shek Mui, former headmaster at the Catholic Sacred Heart school. Bulganin Proposal Dulls Ike's Impact

No Indication of Division
Of Opinion in Western Ranks

BY TOM OCHILTREE

London —P— Soviet Premier Bulganin's proposal for summit talks today blunted the impact of President Eisenhower's call for peace through strength.

Instead of having the newspapers all to himself, Eisenhower had to share space with Bulganin and in some cases took second place to the Soviet premier.

But there were no immediate signs that Bulganin had caused new divisions of opinion in western ranks.

Rather western Europe's newspapers gave their readers the impression that Eisenhower and Bulganin were engaging in a dialogue of peace—a conversation that did not fit together very well but was of tremendous importance for the entire world.

Editorial Opinion

Except in the communist papers. Editorial writers gave support to the lines of the president's state of the Union message, but there were doubts whether the president could secure final congressional approval for his expensive and complex program.

The independent Times of London said in its editorial: "Trying to do too much at once may have hampered the American effort hitherto."

Newspapers pointed out that Bulganin's notes amounted to a summary of all Soviet proposals made in the past 12 months. Some said, too, that he was using a tricky kind of timing.

Bulganin not only had his proposals hit world news channels while they were handling the Eisenhower message, but the Soviet premier made his latest move while the western

Second Successful Atlas Missile Launched From Base in Florida

Cape Canaveral, Fla. —P— The air force launched its fourth Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile at 10:48 a.m. today.

The giant missile took off in a puff of white smoke and a tremendous flash of flame. It rose slowly through hazy clouds. Its bright trail of fire was visible for almost three minutes.

The thunder of its mighty engines — a primary motor and four boosters — could be heard as the missile itself distance. No attempt to fire the missile was made.

Shortly before disappearing range is expected until late this the beach were caught by surprise. The Atlas was just a missile started to get out of control shortly after launching the beach. Cool Toward Red Maneuver

Dulles May Offer
Comment Today
At Press Interview

Washington —P— Russia's latest and most insistent demand for an east-west summit conference on crucial cold war issues got intensive study—and a cold reaction—today in official Washington.

Secretary of State Dulles was expected to respond informally at an afternoon news conference to the new maneuver by Premier Bulganin.

In a message to President Eisenhower, Bulganin said he proposes to call an east-west summit meeting, perhaps in Geneva, in the next two or three months. Pravda said Bulganin messages went to the 15 NATO nations and the other countries of the 82-member United Nations. Moscow radio said Switzerland and other nations said not in the U. N. also received messages.

At the White House and at the state department there was no evidence that the United States intends to change its basic policy against having a new top-level meeting under present conditions.

Lambert Arraigned On Charge of Murder

Fond du Lac —P— Clayton Lambert, 29-year-old factory worker who authorities said admitted killing his former fiancée and her male companion, was arraigned in municipal court today on a charge of first degree murder.

Judge Hazen W. McEsey granted Lambert's request for a postponement to permit him to consult an attorney. Bond was set at $10,000 and Lambert was taken back to jail. No plea was entered.

Dist. Atty. Eugene F. McEsey, who said Lambert's signed statement admitting the double slaying was obtained at the state crime laboratory, issued the first degree murder charge in connection with the death of Miss Marie Riel, 26, the defendant's former sweetheart.

McEsey said he would hold in abeyance charges growing out of the death of Wallace F. Madison, 38.

Planes Carry Nuclear Weapons Over Canada

Ottawa —P— Defense Minister G. R. Pearkes told the House of Commons today U.S. planes occasionally carry nuclear weapons over Canada.

Pearkes said there is no risk to Canadian lives or property. The United States is required to obtain advance permission before carrying out such flights, he said.

The ministry was replying to a question from W. J. Henderson, liberal member, who asked about a Canadian Press report that U.S. planes occasionally carry atomic or hydrogen bombs over Canada.

Ike to Send Congress $73 Million Budget

Spending for Fiscal 1959 Will Call for Increase in Limit Of Federal Debt; Balance Seen

BY STERLING F. GREEN

Washington —P— President Eisenhower will send to congress Monday a missile age budget calling for $73,800,000, 000 or more in spending and an increase in the federal debt ceiling, government informants said today.

The new budget, covering the 1959 fiscal year starting next July 1, will be precariously balanced, as Eisenhower hinted in his state of the union message yesterday.

But the president will notify congress that the supposedly balanced budget for the present government year is now expected to show a small deficit instead of a planned $14 billion surplus, officials disclosed.

2 Factors

Eisenhower reportedly will attribute the return to deficit financing to two factors: a $1,300,000,000 increase in scheduled defense department outlays; and a drop of about a billion dollars in estimated revenues, caused by declining business profits and personal income.

The deficit will be well under a half-billion dollars, informants said, but the return to red ink is a major disappointment to the administration. Only three months ago the administration announced it would have its third balanced budget in a row.

The same causes — faster military spending, slower tax collections — will oblige Eisenhower to seek a temporary, "slight" increase in the $275 billion ceiling on the public debt, administration sources said.

The treasury had hoped this year to avoid puncturing the debt ceiling imposed by congress as a curb on executive spending. Some influential legislators, during last spring's congressional "economy drive," announced they would refuse to vote for an increase.

See Little Resistance

This resistance is expected to fade quickly, however, under the government-wide pressure for a defense speed-up to enable this country to match and exceed Soviet progress in missiles, rockets, and scientific weaponry.

The expected budget request of close to $74 billion will be about two billions higher than Eisenhower's original estimate for this fiscal year and roughly one billion higher than this year's actual outlays.

This will represent the highest federal spending since World War II. Former President Harry S. Truman had a bigger budget in 1953, costliest year of the Korean war, but his $74,300,000,000 budget included highway spending and Eisenhower's does not. A separate highway trust fund was established under a 1956 law.

The president told congress yesterday there will be substantial steps in outlays for missiles, nuclear ships, atomic energy, research and development, and science and education.

Special Fund

In his state of the union message, he confirmed reports that a special contingency fund—understood to total about $500 million—would be requested, to be spent at his discretion to exploit possible new technological discoveries. There also will be requests for pay increases to enable the government to get and hold competent manpower.

He said, and added: "I believe that, in spite of these necessary increases, we should strive to finance the 1959 security effort out of expected revenues. We now believe that expected revenues and expenditures will roughly balance."

To make ends meet, he said, it will be necessary that congress cooperate in analyzing the programs presented, cutting outlays on "less essential" military programs and construction, postponing some civilian programs, transferring others to the states, and curtailing or eliminating some non-defense items altogether.

Brewery Head Ouster Affirmed

Directors of Fox Head Vote Removal of Feicht

Chicago —P— Removal of Arthur J. Feicht, Chicago insurance broker, as chairman of Fox Head Brewing company, Waukegan, Wis., was reaffirmed by a majority of directors Thursday.

The directors also reaffirmed the election of Alexander Morse, a New York City stock broker, to replace Feicht.

The 3-man board met in Chicago following a ruling in circuit court at Waukegan which gave three directors the right to take over the brewery's management and install their own managerial slate.

The two opposing groups are engaged in a fight for control of the brewery, Joseph Anton, and Charles M. Fergang of New York, compose the majority group of directors and the faction seeking control.

Feicht, Frank Huber of Milwaukee, other board members; and Leo Calvey, Milwaukee, secretary-treasurer of the firm, make up the group seeking to retain control. Calvey also was removed from his post.

Circuit Judge William Gramling of Waukegan Wednesday cancelled a temporary injunction which had halted a reorganization of the company initiated by Antonow and his group Dec. 27 when Feicht was removed as board chairman.

Group to Investigate Greek Complaints on British Rule in Cyprus

Paris —P— The Council of Europe announced today that a subcommittee of its "rights of man" committee will go to strife-torn Cyprus to investigate Greek government complaints about British rule on the east Mediterranean island.

A communique from the advisory West European "parliament" said the investigating group would go to Cyprus Jan. 13 and stay about two weeks.

The announcement said the subcommittee would seek to determine "whether there exists in Cyprus a public danger menacing the life of the nation and in what circumstances measures violating the law have been applied."

Greece has charged the British with atrocities, brutality and suppression of civil rights in the campaign against the Greek Cypriot underground fighting to unite the island with Greece.

Ike Faces Big Fight to Keep Foreign Aid Up

'Reckless Folly' Argument Used by Both Sides on Issue

BY ERNEST B. VACCARO

Washington —P— Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark.) said today president Eisenhower will have to use all the power at his command to prevent congress from slashing foreign economic aid "below the danger point."

Fulbright and Sens. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.), Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Sparkman (D-Ala.) agreed with Eisenhower that it would be "reckless folly" to cut such aid to provide more money for missiles and other weapons.

But Sen. Russell (D-Ga.) said it would be "the course of reckless folly" to develop and produce these weapons "and expand our economic aid program abroad at the same time."

Eisenhower is expected to propose about $3,900,000,000 in military and economic aid for the fiscal year starting next July 1.

He told congress yesterday, in his State of the Union message, that the communist world is mounting a massive economic offensive against the free world, including the uncommitted and underdeveloped nations.

Eisenhower cautioned against any temptation "to finance our extra military effort by cutting economic assistance."

Russell and other opponents of foreign aid already have advocated sharp cuts in the aid program to help finance stepped up defense spending.

Fulbright said "it will be extremely difficult to get congress and the country to follow the president's recommendations for economic loans and an extension of the reciprocal trade program." He told a reporter, Eisenhower "will have to fight for them all the way."

Humphrey said in a separate interview:

"We can't afford to spend money to meet possible military aggression at the expense of what may be an even more dangerous economic aggression."

Typhoon Ophelia Hits Carolinas at 100 Miles Per Hour

Guam —P— Typhoon Ophelia raked the Ponape district of the Caroline islands Friday morning with 100 mile an hour winds, destroying houses and injuring at least three persons.

High Commissioner D. H. Nuckers said at Trust territory headquarters that Ponape reported about one-third of the housing at Kolonia Island was demolished and all other structures damaged.

The Trust territory ship Chitko reported that Jabon Island suffered extensive property damage and three persons were injured — it was not known how severely. A navy plane from Kwajalein picked up the injured and took them to Majuro Island hospital.

Guam Fleet Weather Central located Ophelia 180 miles west northwest of Ponape in the western Pacific Friday night. The typhoon was moving west at 15 m.p.h. and winds at the center had increased to 130 m.p.h.

Services to Contribute to Macmillan May New Research Agency Turn Clash Into Victory

Fund for Planning Advanced Projects May Eventually Reach Half Million Dollars

BY ELTON C. FAY

Washington —P— The armed forces are expected to contribute both manpower and money to the Pentagon's new agency for planning weapons of space and satellite technology undertaken within the department of defense.

Unimagined Weapons

The president also said elsewhere in his address that "we must be forward-looking in our research and development to anticipate and achieve the unimagined weapons of the future."

The anti-missile missile problem comes within the scope of the new agency's activity for two reasons: The weapons will be those of the future; and they will work out in the fringes of space to intercept and destroy intercontinental ballistic missiles arching toward American targets at speeds of more than 10,000 miles an hour.

Eisenhower's reference to "satellite technology" presumably means the application to military requirements of discoveries made in the development of purely scientific research satellites like the navy Vanguard and the army Jupiter-C projects.

This would mean exploration and then development of satellites into actual space vehicles and whole weapons systems for outer space.

TV Satellite

One of the earliest efforts of the ARPA probably will be to perfect a television-equipped, unmanned satellite to serve as a vehicle for reconnaissance over literally the whole world.

Details of financing plans for ARPA are yet to be disclosed by the Pentagon, although some could come to light in the president's promised early decision on the findings of a special study on Pentagon reorganization, or in the annual budget message next Monday.

To date, the only definite disclosure has been that the defense department plans to transfer about $10 million from its own fund to get the ARPA started.

Undercover Work on His Own Time Leads To Police Promotion

Pittsburgh —P— A police merit board which recommended patrolman John King's promotion to detective yesterday took note of King's undercover work, most of it on his own time, leading to the capture last month of a man wanted by the FBI for murder in North Carolina.

Last night, the FBI announced that King — who again was off duty — assisted in the arrest of a Robert Mason, 35, wanted in New Haven, Conn., for armed robbery.

King's work since joining the force in July, 1954, has earned the 33-year-old Negro officer three other citations, including a letter of commendation from FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover.

Committee on Military Inquiry Urged to Avoid Seeking Political Gain

Problem Needs American Solution Chairman Vinson Tells Members

Washington —P— House armed services committeemen, organizing for a sweeping investigation of the military establishment, were admonished today to avoid "seeking political advantage."

"Our problem demands a widespread public concern over Russian space age threats to national security, promised a concrete program of weapons speedup and "unified direction" of military planning and control.

The committeemen gathered to make final arrangements for what was expected to be the most exhaustive house inquiry in almost a decade into the U. S. military establishment. The first witnesses will appear Monday, led by Secretary of Defense McElroy.

"The purpose of the hearing is to fully explore our military situation in its entirety and than promptly take such legislative action as may be required by the facts," Vinson said.

He said he is sure "all of us want to approach these problems without rancor, without recrimination and without seeking political advantage."

The chairman said the inquiry, which he indicated may last some time, will go into "the assignment of roles and missions, and the organization and operation of the joint chiefs of staff."

Vinson made no reference in his prepared statement to President Eisenhower's state of the union message yesterday. Eisenhower, recognizing "Our problem demands a widespread public concern over Russian space age threats to national security, promised a concrete program of weapons speedup and "unified direction" of military planning and control.

The committeemen gathered to make final arrangements for what was expected to be the most exhaustive house inquiry in almost a decade into the U. S. military establishment. The first witnesses will appear Monday, led by Secretary of Defense McElroy.

"The purpose of the hearing is to fully explore our military situation in its entirety and than promptly take such legislative action as may be required by the facts," Vinson said.

He said he is sure "all of us want to approach these problems without rancor, without recrimination and without seeking political advantage."

Fire Chief to Ready Bid Call On New Truck

City Wants 65-Foot Aerial Ladder Unit; $25,000 in Budget

Fire Chief Paul Neumann has been instructed by the public safety committee to prepare specifications for bids on a new 65-foot aerial ladder truck. When specifications are ready, City Clerk Elden Broehm will advertise for bids. The 1958 fire department budget has $25,000 set aside for the purchase. The new truck will replace one more than 40 years old. Electrical Inspector Fred Volkman has been instructed to write specifications for 15,000 feet of copper cable and 10,000 feet of traffic control cable. Broehm again will advertise for bids when the specifications are ready. In other committee action: The police department was given permission to take the street marking machine to Meli-Blumberg, New Holstein, for repairs.

Parking Restrictions
A 90-minute parking restriction was voted for the two stalls on the north side of W. Franklin street at the northwest corner of the N. Superior street intersection.

Placement of the street light at N. Viola street and E. Francis street on a bracket was denied. The light presently is more in the center of the intersection than it could be on a bracket, committeemen said. Aid Roy Pointer asked for the change on behalf of J. D. Greeg, 2019 N. Viola.

Committee again took no action on two proposals by Aid Ervin J. Bogan.

To Talk to Railroad
Chairman Homer Malmstrom, however, said he would sound out the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railway about what can be done to curtail blocking of S. and Mrs. Gordon C. Bahr, 2506 Oneida street in the late afternoon.

The committee decided to take no action at all on Bogan's request to prohibit parking on N. Story street between W. Summer street and W. Wisconsin avenue, except on Sundays and holidays.

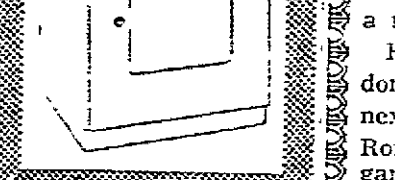

It was said the resolution was prompted by the need for policemen to remove three cars from the street recently.

Committeemen said they would await further complaints.

2 Girls Hurt As Cars Crash

Driver, 16, Receives Concussion; Passenger Suffers Head Cuts

Two young women were injured Thursday evening when their car collided with another and hit a utility pole at W. Brewster and N. Bennett streets.

Miss Bonnie French, 16, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William J. French, 1915 McDonald street, driver of one of the cars, 1304 1/2 N. Meade street, this morning received a severe concussion and her passenger, Miss Nancy Selig, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Selig, 317 W. Spring street, walked from her car, 403 W. Superior street, after the crash.

Miss French's car, eastbound on W. Brewster, collided with a car traveling south on N. Bennett and driven by Donald M. Bowers, 34, 1520 N. Viola street.

Woman Injured
Mrs. G. A. Ediger, 1507 W. Harris street, received injuries to her elbow and hip Thursday afternoon when her car collided with one driven by David R. Riley, 1136 W. Oklahoma street, at E. North and N. Union streets. Police said icy streets prevented the drivers from stopping.

A 5-year-old girl received head bruises about 9:45 this morning when she was struck by a car driven by George R. Kloes, 40, 737 W. Wisconsin summer streets. Police said Nancy Selig, 5, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry E. Selig, 317 W. Spring street, walked from her car into the raised funds to build YMCAs in other countries.

'I've Had Enough'
Man With Amazing Car Safety Record Gives Up His License

Freedom — A young - old man with the wisdom of Solomon has done the rare thing in this go-go age — he's turned in his license to operate a motor vehicle.

Henry P. Van Dyke, Freedom, who will be 85 years old next April 21, came to Capt. Ronald Decker of the Outagamie county traffic police and voluntarily surrendered his driver's license.

Never An Accident
He did this, it must be understood, after 40 years of driving in which he never had an accident, never was stopped for any traffic violation or warning and never was involved in anything more serious than being stuck in the snow.

Van Dyke, who began to drive in 1918 obtained his first driver's license in 1927—the first year licenses were issued in Wisconsin — credits this personal creed for building his unique safe-driving record. "Always look out for the other fellow as well as yourself."

"I wish, Van Dyke said, that young drivers of today would follow that same motto."

Van Dyke was born and reared in the village of Freedom. He has served the township for 27 years as a public official—13 years as clerk, 10 as assessor and four as chairman.

He'll leave Appleton today by train for California, where he'll visit relatives.

Rare Thing
Capt. Decker said it is an extremely rare thing to have a person come forward and voluntarily surrender a driver's license. "It is something that people just don't want to do," he says.

Why, then, did Van Dyke give up his license after compiling such an outstanding record of driving skill? "I've simply had enough," the old man answered quietly.

Suggest Using Police Boat To Halt Speeding on River

One way to solve the problem of speeding boats on the Fox river is to station a policeman in a police boat in mid-channel, some public safety committeemen believe.

The idea was advanced as the committee referred the problem to City Atty. Don Jury for study. It was pointed out the police department has a powered boat it could use.

Jury, Chairman Homer Malmstrom said, is expected to consult the League of Wisconsin Municipalities for methods which other cities use and to confer with Neenah-Menasha officials to review their experiences.

He then is expected to draft an ordinance for presentation to the welfare and recreation (ordinance) committee. Police cannot act until an ordinance is passed.

Ald. Mrs. Dorothy Stillings asked for some action in a resolution offered at the Dec. 18 council meeting.

Rural Appleton Man Held for Making 20 Obscene Phone Calls
A 50-year-old rural Appleton man was in Outagamie county jail today after he admitted making obscene suggestions during telephone calls to about 20 girls of high school age in Hortonville.

Chief of Police Ira Dominowski and Sheriff's Lt. Jack Zuelze arrested the man after complaints by parents. They said he has been arrested for similar offenses, the last time about six months ago.

Undersheriff Regains Traffic Patrol Post
Waupaca — Lyle McCully, was named Waupaca county undersheriff when he was relieved of duty as a county traffic patrolman in June, has been reinstated as a traffic patrolman effective March 1.

McCully will be stationed in New London area where he lives. His removal from the county force in June was based on his refusal to move from New London when he was assigned to Marion. He was a patrolman for 18 months. He also served as the New London Fourth ward supervisor on the Waupaca county board for 16 years.

Tax Collection
Fremont — Edwin Albe, village treasurer, will collect taxes at his home every evening after 5 o'clock and all day Saturdays. He also suggests residents may mail checks and money orders to him.

Seek Report On Off-Time of City Workers

Finance Committee Asks Council Order Move Wednesday

A report of off-time compiled annually by city employees is advocated by the city council's finance committee.

It wants the council Wednesday night to require department heads to file with the city clerk a report of all absences, sick leaves and vacations of employees.

Clerk Elden Broehm told the committee his office, which makes out payrolls, has no forms which tell of employees' time off. Such records are left to department heads, he said.

The committee wants the reports filed on the first day of the month or payrolls will be withheld.

Other Action
Other committee action: Transfer of the $50,000 in the salary adjustment account of the 1958 budget to the various departmental accounts was recommended. Broehm said $4,050 of the amount will go to the park board and $2,250 to the library, with the remainder staying in departments controlled directly by the council. Budget change notices will be required.

Adoption of an ordinance which stipulates the city will be liable for collection of county and state taxes by the treasurer was recommended. In years past, the council provides the county and state with the legal assurances through a resolution passed in December. The ordinance is an alternate method.

Permission for Relief Director F. A. W. Hammond, who currently faces an abnormal work load, to use one of Broehm's clerks was granted.

Check Claim
The Town of Grand Chute's claim for payment of $2,801.16 in income taxes which the town says was erroneously paid to Appleton will be checked.

Broehm said he will contact J. L. Tibbets, of the Wisconsin tax office. Broehm told the committee his interpretation of state law is that the town claim was filed too late.

Among the bills recommended for payment are $5,450 to Chris Vandenhoeve for the N. Mason street school site and $8,300 to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Emmers in down payment and first installment for the second high school site.

Gantner told police he had gone home and picked up some tools, returning to the store to work on the safe. He had been drinking and told police he needed money because he had spent too much in taverns.

Judge Schmieg told Gantner that one misstep during his confinement in jail would result in school Parent-Teacher association meets at 8 o'clock Monday evening in the school. His topic will be "A B C's of Mental Health and You."

Tennis Court For Arbutus Park Denied
The park board's special tennis court committee decided Thursday not to build a court in Arbutus park.

Arthur Jones, board secretary and Park Supt. Harold Jerke explained the low bidder for construction of new courts refused to guarantee an Arbutus court because of the lack of sub-grade drainage.

The low bidder is Stone Construction company, Milwaukee. The 2-man committee, given power to act by the full board, awarded the company the contract for work totaling $18,045.

Other Bidders
Two double courts will be built at both Linwood and Telulah parks. Two courts will be resurfaced at City and Erk parks and three will be resurfaced at Pierce park.

Stone's bid lists $10,640 for the total cost of the new courts and $7,405 for the reconstruction work.

Other bidders and their net prices as determined by Director of Public Works Edwin J. Duszynski: Arby Construction, Inc., Wauwatosa, $19,000; Badger Highways, Inc., Menasha, $20,496.20, and Mayer Paving company, Skokie, Ill., $24,120.

Bulganin Proposal Dulls Ike's Impact

powers still were considering their replies to messages from him last month.

The west showed no signs of being rushed into top-level talks. London's conservative Daily Telegraph said in its news column: "It is most unlikely that the western powers will agree to such a meeting without holding a foreign ministers' or other high-level conference first."

In a cautiously worded editorial, the conservative Daily

Mail said: "America is determined to make herself and her friends stronger and to maintain peace by deterrents. But every effort must also be made to seek it by negotiation."

The liberal Manchester Guardian commented: "President Eisenhower's state of the Union message, devoted wholly to the great issues of war and peace, is a reasonable document though often wreathed in platitudes."

Foreign Aid Issue
The Guardian suggested it might be easy enough to get congress to appropriate the money needed for America's expanded military program but that congress, with American taxpayers in mind, might "dig in its heels" on foreign aid.

First reaction to Eisenhower's speech from the other side of the Iron Curtain came from the East German communist party organ Neues Deutschland. It called it "disappointing" and claimed it was keyed entirely to American armament policy "without mentioning with a single word the many concrete Soviet proposals aimed at decreasing international tension."

West Berlin's pro-socialist Telegraf also was critical of the speech, saying it was hardly suitable "to give a new uplift to the people's hopes for peace and relaxation of tension."

But in Italy a high foreign ministry official said the Eisenhower message "has shown once again the great political wisdom of the president of the United States. He has understood that it would be a mistake to take to rely only on military might to defend peace."

The Italian communist L'Unita claimed "peace will be achieved if the world will follow the path proposed by Moscow."

Austria's anti-communist press thought Bulganin had stolen some of Eisenhower's thunder. The headline in Vienna's Neuer Kurier read: "Moscow sows confusion in west: Bulganin joins Eisenhower's message. While U. S. A. pulls itself together for greatest efforts, Soviet Union torpedoes with a new letter offensive."

In Paris the independent Aurore referred to the dialogue between east and west implicit in Eisenhower's and Bulganin's messages. The same newspaper said Eisenhower once again proved himself a man of peace and reason and said:

"While reassuring the west by promising it that everything would be done in order to safeguard the military guarantees of its freedom, he simultaneously offered the Russians an opportunity for resuming contacts."

The independent Paris-Journal, enthusiastic about the president's speech, said it "opens restraint in the matter of federal spending."

He said that "unfortunately, there is no question that the present tax rates have an adverse effect on the national economy, especially small business," but he pointed out that a "return to deficit spending and resulting inflation would be even more disastrous."

He believes the "only solution would be a stringent approach toward government spending, with the view of cutting taxes in the same, or similar amount as the government spending was cut."

According to Byrnes, one witness before ways and means stated the entire problem very well by saying, "whether the issue of spending is placed on the grounds of beating the recession or beating the Russians or both, does not give it absolute priority over tax rate reform. The fundamental answer to the Russians or to the recession is to revitalize our own economy."

Such a revitalization does require tax reform, Byrnes said, emphasizing that such reform will depend entirely upon what congress does in the field of spending.

Living Standards in Canada Rated High
Ottawa — A university professor's study says average living standards in Canada are higher than in Britain or the rest of western Europe but 20 to 30 per cent below the United States.

Prof. David W. Slater of Queen's university, Kingston, Ont., prepared the report for the Gordon royal commission surveying Canada's economic prospects. It was made public Thursday.

Slater said living standard differences are greatest in ownership of such durable consumer goods as refrigerators, cars and television sets. Canadian consumer prices are substantially higher than U. S. prices because of higher taxes and tariffs plus greater distribution costs in the smaller market, the study added.

Legal Lottery Booster Sees Better Chance

Washington — A Congress No. 1 advocate of a government-run lottery said Thursday prospects never were brighter. "Not that I am so naive I think my lottery bill will pass right away," added Rep. Paul H. Fino. "But things are moving our way."

Fino, a well-groomed Republican from a prosperous middle class New York City district, said the government can have a yearly income boost of at least $10 billion without new taxes any time congress authorizes a lottery. And he said two things encourage him to think the time may be coming:

The drive to pour more funds into military and scientific efforts to counter Soviet gains. "Maybe you can balance a $74 billion budget on paper," he remarked, "but when they really start spending..."

A swing in public sentiment he said is evidenced by such things as New Yorkers' referendum vote last November to legalize bingo.

As he has at regular intervals since he came to congress in 1953, Fino took the floor yesterday to advise his colleagues they can't afford to neglect such a bonanza as a "well-regulated, all-government-run lottery."

Spending Key To Tax Cut, Byrnes Says
BY FRANCES MCKUSICK
Post-Crescent Washington Bureau

Washington—Although nearly 300 witnesses are scheduled to recommend tax reforms to the house ways and means committee, of which Rep. John W. Byrnes, Green Bay, is a member, the congressman today predicted that "unfortunately, nothing will come of all of this unless the congress acts with restraint in the matter of federal spending."

He said that "unfortunately, there is no question that the present tax rates have an adverse effect on the national economy, especially small business," but he pointed out that a "return to deficit spending and resulting inflation would be even more disastrous."

He believes the "only solution would be a stringent approach toward government spending, with the view of cutting taxes in the same, or similar amount as the government spending was cut."

Gather Data For Local Road Report

Research May Result in Change In Financial Policy
Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison—State highway department technicians and field men are making steady progress in piling up data for what may be one of the most important highway research reports ever prepared in this state.

Under direction of a legislative interim committee on highways, the highway department, counties, cities, villages and towns are collaborating on a giant local road inventory and the classification project that may bring about fundamental revisions in road financing policy in the 1959 legislature.

The findings will affect disposition of some $45,000,000 annually which the state is funneling into local roads and streets. Much of it without sufficient documentation and without a defensible policy, according to some critics.

Otto L. Rollman, a Green Bay consulting engineer, is chairman of the sub-committee directing the study. C. K. Alexander, on loan from the Wisconsin Taxpayers Alliance, is head of the technical staff. All roads not on the state trunk highway system, about 75,000 miles, are embraced in the study.

The investigation is based on the idea that the state should contribute to local roads according to their importance as measured by service, and that local roads should be classified according to their service.

At present, state aids are passed out according to arbitrary classifications that are not necessarily related to the service importance or the extent of use of the roads. County highways are subsidizing according to one schedule, town roads according to another. First class cities get one scale of subsidy, second class cities another. Villages are classified differently.

The probable recommendation of the investigators is for a future local road classification system in three categories: There would be primary, secondary and local roads, depending upon the evidence of their use as now being collected.

The seriousness of purpose of the survey is shown by the fact of the willing collaboration of the municipal government federations, including the powerful Wisconsin County Boards association, the League of Wisconsin Municipalities, and the Wisconsin Towns association.

Each of them is the perennial sponsor of bills to increase or adjust the pace of state subsidies for local roads and streets.

Want Evidence
But each of them is evidently now persuaded that the legislature is unlikely to adopt such increases or changes in the road aid schedule without more solid evidence of the nature and the relations of the vast network of local roads.

From the public viewpoint, the issue is a large one because of the volume of money involved. The state aids for local roads now represent nearly half of the state's highway tax yields—aside from the federal government aids to the state for some of those local roads.

The aid schedules have been evolved haphazardly in the past, sometimes through pressure and political design, rather than according to statistical proof of the relative importance of the various local road systems.

Husband of Ex-Queen Won't Pay Alimony
Cairo — Ex-Queen Narmiman's estranged second husband reportedly refuses to pay her alimony despite her threat to sue for divorce.

The newspaper Al Akhbar quoted Dr. Ahmed Mohammed Elmakki, who married Narmiman after she divorced former King Farouk, as saying he does not recognize a decree of the Moslem religious court of appeal in Beirut ordering him to pay Narmiman 500 Lebanese pounds ($150) a month.

May Channel Defense Work Into State

Official to Visit With Governor and Development Head
Kenosha — Kenneth P. Borgen, a navy procurement official from Washington, D.C., said Wednesday he would investigate to determine what could be done to channel defense contracts into areas of unemployment in Wisconsin.

He was scheduled to meet this afternoon in Madison with Gov. Vernon Thomson, and with Homer Vick, assistant director of the state division of industrial development.

In the meeting Wednesday Borgen and officials from Kenosha, Racine, Baraboo and Rock county discussed unemployment in those areas.

Note Unemployment
It was noted that 1,650 persons were listed by the Wisconsin State Employment service as unemployed in Kenosha, while the total in Racine is 2,490.

More than 1,700 are unemployed in Beloit, with another 1,000 on a short work week. Janesville representatives said their city had no critical problem but that further production cutbacks were in the offing.

In the Baraboo area the Badger Ordnance Works has reduced the production of powder to such a point the plant is almost inoperative. It was reported that the army plans to offer portions of the huge facility for lease by private industry.

It was agreed that industries in the four areas would be notified when the defense department is taking bids, and it was recommended that industries in the areas place their names on the list of bidders for government work.

Arson Suspected In Six Fires at Southern School

Chapel Hill, N. C. — Police said today they suspect arson as the cause of six separate fires which broke out yesterday in buildings of the University of North Carolina.

The worst fire started in Swain hall, where the university communications center is located. Officials inventoried equipment today in an attempt to estimate damages to the studios of UNC-TV, located in the building.

Officers said a 14-year-old boy seen at two of the fires was picked up for questioning and released.

The fire at Swain hall was controlled in an hour. Three fires also broke out at the Carolina inn, but were confined mostly to carpeting.

About $600 in damages were reported in a fire at Hill hall that broke out while firemen were fighting the blaze at Swain hall. The first fire was discovered at Miller hall in the afternoon with damage there slight.

Swain hall houses the university's radio and television stations, photographic laboratory and motion picture studio.

Reese managed to drive his tractor and crippled trailer off Highway 125, then pushed the tandem assembly off the highway. The wheels stopped rolling after about 30 feet when the air brakes locked. Reese noted it was fortunate no car was following him, since it undoubtedly would have hit the tandem assembly. (Post-Crescent Photo)

10th Anniversary

VNA History Reflects Decade of Health Services to Community

When the Visiting Nurse association holds its tenth annual meeting Thursday evening, its history books will be closed on a decade of aid to a community in need of its service.

Opening before them will be the blank pages of a ledger still to be filled.

The history of the VNA is one that began 10 years ago when the Infant Welfare circle of King's Daughters, conscious of Appleton's need of a nursing service, took the two steps necessary to found the institution. The group appointed a committee and donated $3,000 toward the expense of founding a VNA here. While the committee (Mrs. Westbrook Steele, chairman; Mrs. James Bergstrom, Mrs. Rowland Campbell, Mrs. William C. Wing and Mrs. J. P. Frank) laid the groundwork through community contacts and money raising, the circle continued its financial support by donating $3,000 yearly for the first four years of the VNA's life.

VNA Purposes
Incorporated Aug. 7, 1946, the organization lists its purposes as:

1. To give professional nursing care under doctor's orders to the sick and injured in their homes on a visit basis and regardless of the patient's ability to pay.
 2. To educate the patient and family in appropriate nursing practice and promotion of good health.
 3. To educate new mothers and fathers for parenthood.
 4. To provide part time nursing service for industry.
- Commencement date of the nursing service preface by a publicity campaign was Sept. 1, 1947, with Miss Inez Davis a registered nurse hired as nurse director. Service then, as now, was offered within one mile of the city limits.
- Early meetings were held at the city hall at St. Elizabeth hospital and later in a small office at 115 E. College avenue. The present VNA house, 310 N. Durkee street, was purchased in February, 1949.

Health Services
Services offered by the Red Feather agency of course are centered about health subjects. Besides conducting visits to home-needing nurses the organization conducts without charge weekly classes for expectant mothers. Classes are given in a series of eight sessions and total attendance has been 5,227.

In addition, a loan closet is maintained to provide sick and rooming mothers much of it donated by interested individuals and organizations.

During its 10 years of existence the VNA has added several services to its roster.

In 1950 the city contracted with the organization to do tuberculosis control work. This includes keeping records of TB cases, conducting follow-ups of X-ray surveys, doing follow-ups of inactive cases for five years reporting to the board of health.

Fox River Bus Lines Given Approval to Change Part of Route

Fox River Bus Lines today was granted state public service commission approval to change part of one bus route.

It may now send its bus on E. Randall avenue to connect with E. Wisconsin avenue by way of E. Kay street and N. Viola street instead of staying on E. Randall to make the connection.

Notice of the approval was received at the city clerk's office. The city council approved the change Dec. 18.

and seeing that all active cases are hospitalized.

Industrial nursing service was made available in August, 1949, on a part-time basis to provide nursing care to employees of industries whose size wouldn't warrant employment of a full-time nurse.

Hearing Tests
From June, 1952, to July, 1956, the VNA assisted in training students enrolled in the practical nurses school of The- da Clark hospital and in April, 1954, an audiometric testing program for industry was initiated.

The latter program was started after a Wisconsin law was passed requiring new employees of any industry with a possible noise hazard have their hearing tested before employment. To provide the service, it was necessary to purchase an audiometric machine and build a soundproof room within a room at the VNA house.

The Red Feather agency works as closely as possible with other health organizations in the community and stores and distributes cancer dressings free of charge to cancer patients in the county.

In cooperation with the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis association, the group has issued permits for chest X-rays and has assisted in its general program and, for a period the Wisconsin Heart association was given office space and telephone service at the house.

Financial Help
Besides the financial aid offered by the Infant Welfare circle, work has been financed by gifts from organizations, individuals and industries. A fund drive was conducted in 1951 and affiliation with the Community Fund was completed in July, 1952.

Looking into the future the VNA hopes to continue and improve services and possibly may extend health service to nearby areas outside Appleton. Marking its first decade, the meeting Thursday evening will begin with dinner at 6 o'clock at Butte des Morts golf club. Principal speaker will be Dr.

Teenagers Should Move in Groups, Priest Contends

Teenagers once they begin taking an interest in the opposite sex should be given opportunities to mix in large groups to avoid particular friendships and exclusiveness.

That was the contention of the Rev. Thomas Mortell, assistant pastor at Holy Name Catholic church, Kimberly, Thursday night. He spoke to about 250 people at the Sacred Heart Home-School association meeting.

Exclusive or steady dating is a remote preparation for marriage, whether the young people are willing to admit it or not. Since they are not able or prepared to marry, they should not date exclusively with one individual, he stated.

There is a grave moral danger resulting from over-familiarity in this formative period in their lives.

He also pointed out parents have an obligation to know where their children are, with whom and what they are doing at all times.

Drivers Sign 3-Year Pact, 42-Cent Raise

Local Teamsters Will Vote on New Contract Approval

Chicago — Teamsters union representatives in 13 central states, including Wisconsin, Thursday approved an agreement for increased wages and other benefits.

(The contract must be approved by local unions, including Appleton's Local 563.)

James R. Hoffa, president-elect of the union, said the wages and other benefits will amount to 42 cents an hour over a 3-year period. The agreement covers 133,000 drivers.

The agreement calls for wage increases on Feb. 1 of each of the next three years, with a first year and seven cents an hour in each of the following years. Improved welfare and pension benefits made up the rest of the package.

Local Meetings
(Robert Schlieve, secretary-treasurer of Local 563 of the Teamsters, attended the negotiations. The agreement still must be ratified by the membership. Meetings for Local 563 contract as a basis for their negotiations, paving the way for clock Sunday morning at the national standard wages for Labor hall for over-the-road Teamster members, Schlieve drivers, and at 7.30 Tuesday said.)

VNA Board Picks Officers, Plans Dinner

Mrs. Joseph Foley, long active in Visiting Nurse association activities, was named president of the organization during a board meeting Thursday. She succeeds Mrs. H. H. Helble, who has served several years as head of the Red Feather agency.

Also elected were the Mmes Eugene Pierce, first vice president; Dexter Wolf, second vice president; Fred Eustice, secretary; C. B. Sitterson, treasurer; and K. E. Kloeck, assistant treasurer.

The VNA will hold a special observance of its 10th annual meeting during a dinner at 6 o'clock Thursday night at Butte des Morts Golf club. Dr. John Z. Bowers, dean of the University of Wisconsin medical school, will discuss "Modern Medicine."

The dinner will be held at the Labor hall for local cartage drivers.

Under terms of the contract, drivers will be earning $2.58 an hour for a 40-hour week by Feb. 1, 1960, Schlieve said. The contract negotiations were the regular mid-term reopening of the trucking companies.

(West coast representatives of the Teamsters attended the negotiations and will use the negotiations as a basis for their negotiations, paving the way for clock Sunday morning at the national standard wages for Labor hall for over-the-road Teamster members, Schlieve drivers, and at 7.30 Tuesday said.)

Fumbling on State Building

The state building commission, as a device to administer capital appropriations granted by the state legislature, is a good one. Through it state institution plants can be more carefully designed and located. Plans can be more minutely supervised. Jockeying and logrolling that are the frequent results of human nature in the legislative process can be avoided, or reduced. The commission also provides an unexcelled opportunity for intimate cooperation by the legislative and executive branches of the state on a subject in which both are equally and directly concerned and responsible.

But we are beginning to wonder whether the members of this building commission know how to handle this machinery. There is evidence of a good deal of uncertainty in its recent proceedings. Gov. Thomson, who is the statutory chairman of the commission and the highest official of the state, has been content to let the group fumble along. He has contributed little, one way or the other.

An example of its uncertainty and clumsiness is offered in the utter futility to date of its deliberations on the question of making more efficient and economical housing arrangements for the several thousands of state officials and employees who work out in the state.

The commission a long time ago decided that it would set up regional office buildings. Yet in the two years since the state engineers have worked according to that understanding, the commission has not yet made a single decision on executing the idea. A Wisconsin Rapids site has been picked, as the sole and insignificant example of progress toward what was a sensible and prudent original goal. In Milwaukee, where some such planning has been going on for a decade, the site building plan has not yet been approved. In La Crosse, where a building was approved a year ago, the commission has rejected all of 11 proffered sites and has figuratively thrown up its hands. Superior has been told it won't get a building for a long time, and to quit bothering Madison about the subject.

For the Fox Valley the commission has voted to "accept" an informal and oral offer of rented space in the Green Bay city hall that was made many months ago, and that may or may not be acceptable to the city today. It will probably take many more months of negotiation. Meanwhile the Fox Cities' carefully prepared presentation apparently will never be heard, although the governor was understood to have promised its representative that the commission would listen to their case.

Commissions aren't designed for most expeditious performance. But this one is promising new records for tedious tardiness.

Clarifying the Obscenity Statutes

A case involving materials imported for the Kinsey Institute, and the U. S. government's decision not to press to have the items destroyed should interest people concerned with the conflict between keeping reading materials within some sort of proper limits, and the dangers of blue-nosed censorship. Court decisions are leaning more and more to the point of view that it all depends who is going to use or read the materials.

Seven years ago the U. S. Customs Bureau began seizing various paintings, books, statuettes and inscriptions destined for the Indiana University Institute for Sex Research begun by the late Dr. Alfred Kinsey. Finally, in 1956, the government filed a suit in district court for authority to destroy the items on the grounds that they were within the vague statute forbidding the importation of any "article which is obscene or immoral."

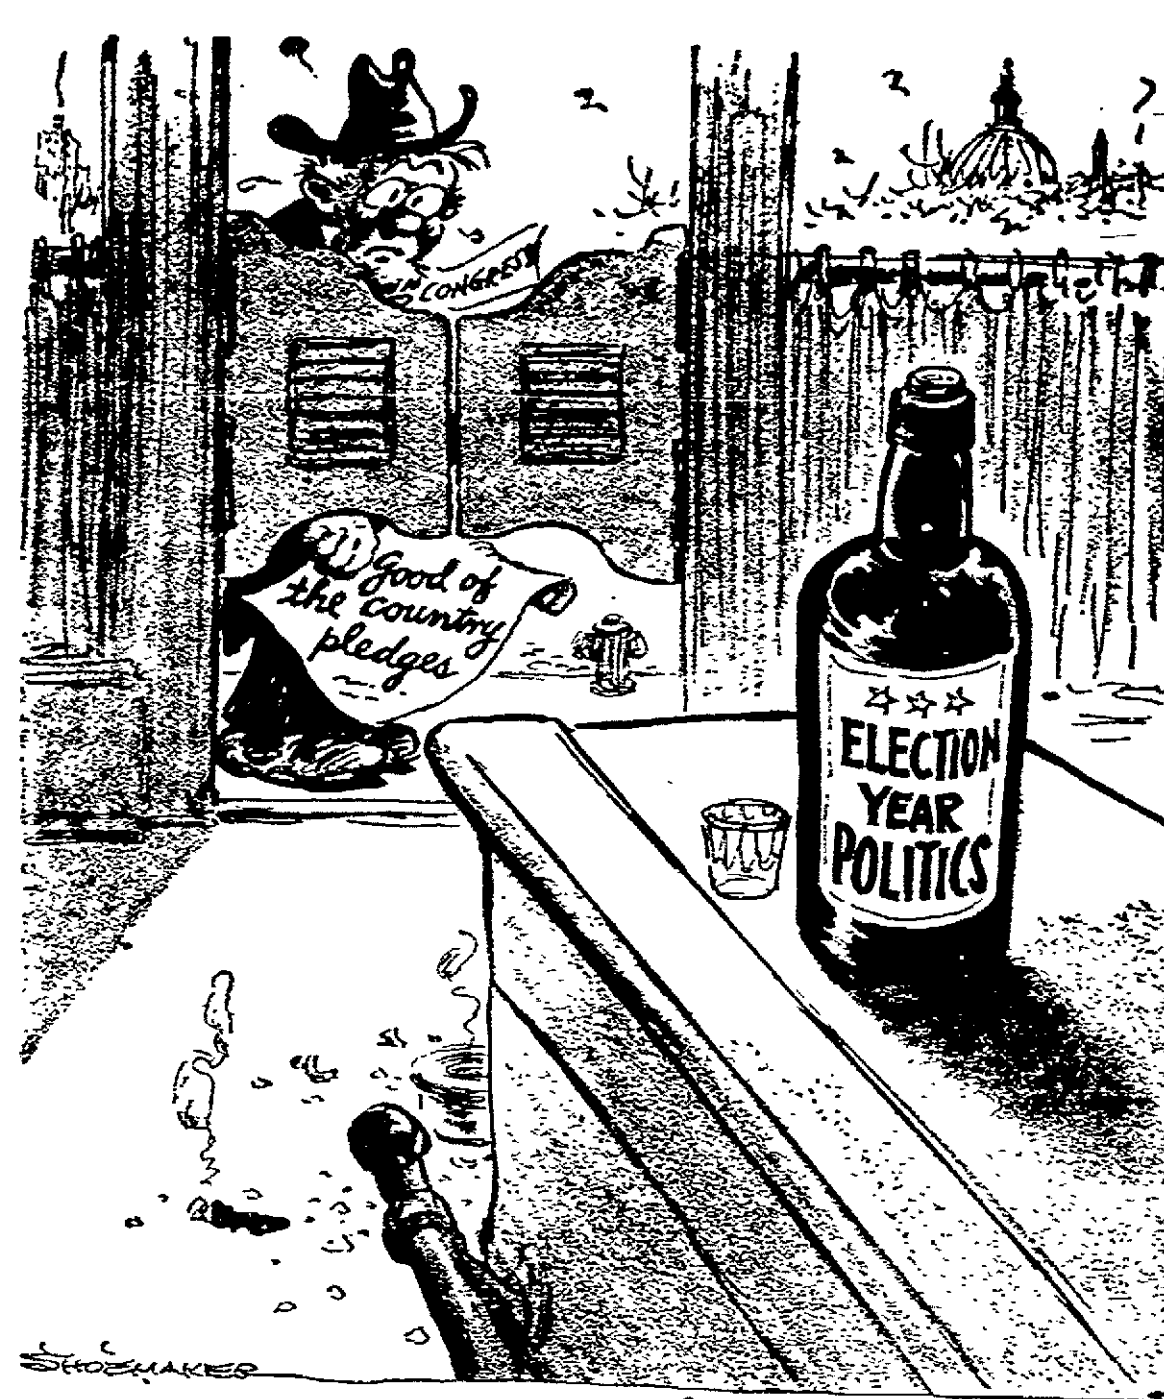

Last fall Federal District Judge Edmund Palmieri rejected the suit and said that an object is not immoral or obscene if the recipient has a genuine scientific purpose. The Kinsey Institute is recognized as a reputable scientific institution despite differences of opinions about the validity of Dr. Kinsey's books. The government has decided not to appeal.

Purely from the scientific angle, this is an intelligent stand. Some of the most disgusting murders recently have revealed perversion and degeneration that show how much we have yet to learn about that factor of human existence. Certainly the Wisconsin

Crime Laboratory, for example, should not be prohibited under the obscenity laws from examining all aspects of the Gen case.

But Judge Palmieri's ruling, and the government's abiding by it, also are a further interpretation of a Supreme Court decision of last summer. At that time the court ruled that a federal statute prohibiting the mailing of obscene matter is constitutional, but that the standard must be whether "to the average person, applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material taken as a whole appeals to a prurient interest." Judge Palmieri ruled that, while the confiscated items in the Kinsey case might so appeal to an average person, they are not going to be so seen and therefore cannot be judged in those terms. Implicit in the Supreme Court decision, the judge said, is the idea that obscenity must be judged in terms of the material's effect on those who see it. "What is obscenity to one person is but a subject of scientific inquiry to another," he wrote.

Slowly, primarily through the courts, citizens are beating their way toward intelligent, balanced viewpoints in these cases. Things which might adversely affect youngsters should not necessarily be made unavailable to adults. And some of the semi-classics, often on so-called decency ban lists, would never be waded through by delinquents who might find a prurient interest. In the long run, it is still very difficult to decide on just what basis some material may be restricted or left alone.

Those Good Resolutions

These Days

Sokolsky's '42 Distrust of Stalin, Reds Borne Out of Present Situation

BY GEORGE SOKOLSKY
(Copyright, 1958)

I was recently clearing out some old papers to make room for new ones when I came across a letter written by a physician on March 4, 1942. It is not necessary to give the writer's name, as he has undoubtedly by now changed his mind.

Sokolsky by now changed his mind. The doctor wrote:

"In this article Mr. Sokolsky, in commenting on Stalin's recent speech, makes certain statements which, no matter how innocently intended are nevertheless grossly misleading and if permitted to go unchallenged, may impair a much needed unity among the allies now fighting the Axis powers."

The doctor was complaining about a piece I wrote on March 2, 1942, stating that Stalin was not then an ally of the United States in a very perilous situation, but that he was playing strictly his own game, which, of course, we now all know that he was doing.

Few Prophets All of this is over the dam and it can mean little to me to have been proved right or wrong in 1942. Few of us are so prophetic that we can foresee the future or so analytical that we never err. It seems to be the special province of the gossip columnist to quarrel over which one first said that the marriage between Mabel Pughose and Jack Blowhard is not taking.

But in the less important affairs, such as, for instance, the rise of a new empire, imperiousness such as weather or the shifting of continents may influence the course of events and change the tides of history. Therefore historic calculations must always be made within margins of uncertainty. However there are guides and anyone who had read history and political and social history since 1848 might have been expected to recognize in 1942 that Stalin could not be a true ally of the United States and Great Britain; that in pursuit of the world revolution, he could accept the aid of the capitalist countries, but that from the standpoints both of historic determinism and self-interest he would ultimately have to pull away from this alliance and go his own way.

This has proved to be true and today, Soviet Russia and its satellites are enemies of the United States, working for our destruction and doing it very well. The historic tragedy has been that Americans, on the whole, illiterate in Marxist literature, but full of the broad humanism of the Bible and the ethical and moral ideas which emanate from the Judaic-Christian religions, rejected too early the warnings against Russia; they rejected them because it was impossible even for some of our most clever men to detect the miserable nature of this enemy.

OSS Infiltrated

It was for this reason that the OSS, for instance, was so viciously infiltrated by communists. Certainly no one in his senses would think, for a moment, that General "Wild Bill" Donovan could be insensitive to the dangers of communism, but the fact remains that whereas such an organization as the OSS should have been staffed entirely, from bottom to top, by dedicated Americans, congressional investigations of communists, fellow-travelers and spies, bring to the fore increasing number of former OSS personnel. The same is true of the OWI.

Results Questionable

In the amalgamation of our espionage and intelligence activities into the CIA, headed by Allen Dulles, a man of remarkable knowledge and capacity, it was believed that a way had been found to eliminate the dangers of wrong personnel and failure to recognize the unusual tactics of the Russians. It is very doubtful, from the results, that CIA has achieved its goal and the reason is not far to seek.

The difference in mentality among peoples is not accidental; it is the entire history of civilization. It is the difference in thought between Genghis Khan and St. Francis of Assisi. It is the mixture of Mongolian and Tartar peoples which developed the force and character of the present Russian type.

And so we went soft and underestimated and misunderstood who the true enemy was and is. Therefore, in 1958, we find ourselves pouring our wealth into west Germany, Austria, Italy and Japan which we tried to destroy and impoverishing ourselves in preparation for what looks as though it might be the most devastating war in history — the war between the United States and Soviet Russia and her satellites, including red China.

More Services for More People Halt Tax Cuts

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — The Democratic governor of an eastern state, of all people, has put into effect a severe economy program in his administration in order to avoid a dangerous budget deficit because of reduced revenues.

Wyngaard

The incident is so extraordinary that the man is getting nationwide attention for his attempt as well as for his words on the subject.

Among the most interesting of the sentiments attributed to him is the observation that the principal enemy of government mental economy is the bureaucracy.

Anybody who has ever watched governmental operations at close range can utter a fervent "amen." There are a hundred current examples in the Wisconsin state government, as there doubtless are in any other government run by men anywhere in the world.

HOW IT GOES

Wisconsin state affairs have been in the hands of comparatively prudent men — with respect to spending appetites — for a long time. Most voters regard the Democrats, on the whole, as inclined to free spending than the Republicans, on the whole.

Yet Wisconsin state expenditures have steadily, inevitably grown over the years. The growth has exceeded the normal impetus that would be attributable to inflation. The people of Wisconsin are getting more government today, and paying more for it, than their fathers and grandfathers did — or probably would have tolerated.

Time after time it has been the office-holder who has brought about such expansion. There is no more persuasive orator anywhere than the ambitious official before a legislative finance committee.

It is true enough that the final record usually shows public participation. The pressure groups rally around at the strategic time. Sometimes they are summoned. Most of the time they need only an indirect signal. The significant point is that the original inspiration comes not from the public — although of course the office-holder is a citizen with all his rights and privileges — but from the man in the departmental office who yearns for more money, more jurisdiction, more power, more importance, and a chance to do more for more people.

The phenomenon is more clearly observable in the reverse. When that occasional legislature or governor turns up who wants to cut spending a bit, there isn't a single spot in the whole system that he can touch without running the risk of instant political retaliation. Thus an appropriation once on the books is the nearest thing to eternity yet devised in American politics.

CASE HISTORY

These dispatches often have observed that the hero in politics is a rare bird. Few of the run of the mill governmental representatives like to take political chances. There is precious little on the modern political scene to encourage the legislator or the congressman to take risks on the matter of governmental costs and its burden of taxation. The recent hullabaloo about the closing of the Milwaukee custom collection office is the richest example of such political facts of life in a long time.

This is not intended to discuss the merits of the proposition, but rather what it signified. Important to an understanding of the political times is the fact that not one politician out of a dozen who loudly protested this proposed economy had the slightest idea of what it was all about. Almost instinctively, he knew that he could do better opposing the economy than by supporting it. He could always make it up to the few sensitive taxpayers later by putting out a release about the sanctity of the Hoover commission recommendations.

Congress meets in a mood of space-age crisis. One congressman warns we face national disaster if we don't put a federal dam on Boondoggle creek in his district.

Ike will speak in Chicago to Republican fund-raisers. One G. O. P. contributor says things are moving faster. He used to give until it hurts. Now he hurts at the mere thought of giving.

When Opera Star Maria Callas walked out on a Rome opera, it was a case of mistaken identity. She thought she was a Dixie delegate to the next Democratic convention.

Ike's state-of-the-union message is one of rare vision. Seldom has a president seen the union in such a state.

Man has come a long way. He has learned to ignore the small alarms and forebodings that fret women — and concentrate on getting the world out of the frying pan into the fire.

House Speaker Rayburn predicts a long session of congress. It may be August before the Democrats finish their last gleeful forecast of impending doom.

The Adman Talks Back to His Critics

From Chicago Daily News

The role of whipping boy is a revolving one in our society, and the advertising men have been having their turn at it lately. We note with interest signs that they feel that their real sins have been sufficiently punished, and are growing weary of being beaten for offenses of which they are innocent.

Specifically, Fairfax M. Cone, Chicago agency executive, attacks, in the current Atlantic, the recurring tendency to speak of advertising as if it were a plot to debase the public taste.

Part of this barrage centers about the charge that advertising causes people to buy what they do not need. Mr. Cone points out quite accurately that real need is almost an unarguable term. Who can say that a woman needs a lipstick or an electric dishwasher, or her husband a TV set and a power mower?

But it is a fact that advertising, as a multiplier of sales messages, promotes the mass consumption of these articles.

Because of the mass market, economy is achieved both in mass production and in mass selling. This process is an important factor in the superiority of the American standard of living.

That advertising has its irresponsible people can no more be denied than that there are shyster lawyers, careless newspaper reporters, quack doctors and sinful preachers. But one does not judge any institution by its mavericks.

One point of Mr. Cone's was of particular interest to us. He took out after statements of Vance Packard's that the advertising agencies have come to have life-or-death power over the mass-circulation media, and exercise this power ruthlessly.

Our experience squares with that of Mr. Cone. Advertisers and advertising men sometimes assuredly take violent exception to things that they read in newspapers and magazines. Sometimes, but much more rarely than some people imagine, they therefore cancel scheduled advertising.

The privilege of doing this is precisely that which any subscriber or customer enjoys of canceling when editorial content or policy fails to please. But any advertiser who made a practice of withdrawing when he found his preferences ignored would run out of media far quicker than the media would run out of advertisers.

KHS Jayvees to Battle Menasha Here Tonight

Junior Ghosts Have Scored Only Victory In Home Gymnasium

Kaukauna — The Kaukauna High school B-squad cagers will tangle with the Jayvees from Menasha in a preliminary game at the local gym at 6:45 this evening.

The Junior Jays have a record of three wins and one defeat in league action while Kaukauna has the reverse record. Menasha downed Clintonville 44 to 38, bested New London 55 to 40 and downed Kimberly 32 to 24. The only loss was a 53 to 30 decision to Shawano.

Coach Wayne Welch of Kaukauna has been having trouble with his team's spells of coldness. In all their outings, the Junior Ghosts have run into a cold quarter when they were unable to find the basket and this has made the difference in the scores. Welch has been stressing offense this week in an effort to break the jinx.

Kaukauna Record

Kaukauna lost the opener 51 to 24 to Two Rivers and then bounced back to defeat a strong Neenah squad 44 to 43. Clintonville rolled to a 58 to 30 win over the young Ghosts and Shawano took a 46 to 32 decision.

Women Foresters Begin Plans for 60th Anniversary

Kaukauna — Plans for the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the organization on April 20 were made at a meeting of St. Ann's Court 226. Lawrence Says: Ike's Message Great Modern State Paper

President's State of Union Talk Directed to People of All Nations

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — President Eisenhower delivered on Thursday perhaps the greatest state paper of modern times. It was not just a "state of the union" message. It was a message on the "state of the world." It was not addressed just to the American people but to all the peoples of the world.

Far beyond its appraisal of domestic problems and the special issues that face America, Eisenhower made his first dramatic appeal to the people of the Soviet Union. Just as President Wilson in 1917 appealed to the German people above the autocratic government in Berlin, so today President Eisenhower appeals over the heads of the communist government in Moscow to the people themselves in Soviet Russia.

This passage in his address will be of transcendent significance in winning the hearts and minds of people around the globe: "My call for action is not primarily addressed to the congress and people of the United States. Rather, it is a message from the people of the United States to all other peoples, especially those of the Soviet Union. This is the spirit of what we would like to say:

"In the last analysis there is only one solution to the grim problems that lie ahead. The world must stop the present plunge toward more and more destructive weapons of war, and turn the corner that will start our steps firmly on the path toward lasting peace.

Hope For Success
Our greatest hope for success lies in a universal fact: the people of the world, as people, have always wanted peace and want peace now.

"The problem, then, is to find a way of translating this universal desire into action. This will require more than words of peace. It requires works of peace."

Here in reality was an appeal for a different kind of "summit conference." It means more contact with peoples, not with dictators who have broken faith with everybody, including their own people.

The president outlined various means of cooperation in "works of peace" and, as a beginning, suggested cooperation in research projects in the field of cancer and heart disease. He recommended broad cultural and scientific programs, too, and showed clearly that America wants to extend the hand of friendship to the Soviet people.

Small wonder that leaders of both political parties here praised the address. For in it was a statement of American idealism which reflects the heart and mind of the American people today.

It was just the kind of address needed in the present crisis. There are, of course, some flaw-pickers who want every detail spelled out or who fear their special projects for legislation may have to be postponed to get the money

Airman to Live A 'Dog's Life'

San Antonio, Texas — In a few weeks, Airman First Class Donald G. Farrell will be living a dog's life — in a test chamber simulating conditions space travelers would experience on a roundtrip flight to the moon.

The experiment by the school of aviation medicine at Randolph air force base will duplicate some conditions met by the Russian dog Laika, the canine shot into orbit aboard Sputnik II.

Air force spokesmen said Farrell would stay in the space flight chamber for a week, sometime next month. Like Laika, he will be wired so scientists can record his reactions. Farrell, a 28-year-old accounting clerk at Randolph, will sit in a canvas-like chair in a chamber the size of a home furnace.

The longest previous test in the unique chamber was 24 hours. Farrell, a former aviation cadet from the Bronx, N. Y., has had some experience in the chamber.

needed to finance missiles and new weapons.

There was in the president's speech a balanced emphasis on military matters—a careful position of how firmly the United States stands today well prepared against any possible attack and of how strong America expects to be in "deterrent power" in the not far distant future. But basically the keynote was confidence and reassurance.

Eisenhower chose in the main an implicit rather than an explicit style of expression. He said he would give details in subsequent messages. But in this address he gave the spirit of the administration's whole approach to the challenges of the "sputnik era."

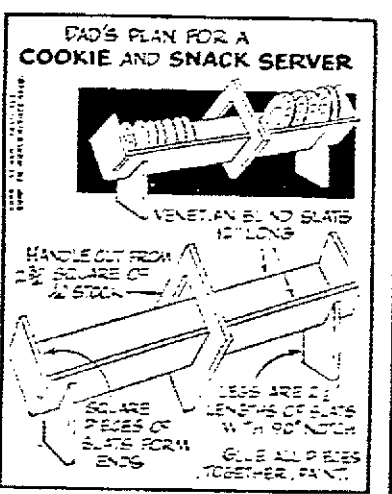

Controversies there will be on mutual aid, tariffs, and the size of the appropriations for defense and non-defense items. But it is significant that the speech was interrupted with applause at least 35 times, and many of the outbursts were prolonged. The president looked healthy and spoke with his accustomed ease. It seems incredible that only a few weeks ago impulsive-minded politicians were calling on him to "re-sign."

Eisenhower reviewed particularly the past efforts at disarmament negotiations and what he called the "parleys which they have up to now refused to find open. So far as the United States is concerned, it was revealed to the world as a nation ready to spend whatever pattern of living. Having decided on such a list, you are in a position to plan intelligently. The sketches shown here indicate how the same property might be developed in four different family needs and viewpoints. Water Causes Major Part of Paint Trouble

Locate Heart of
Problem Before
You Repaint Area

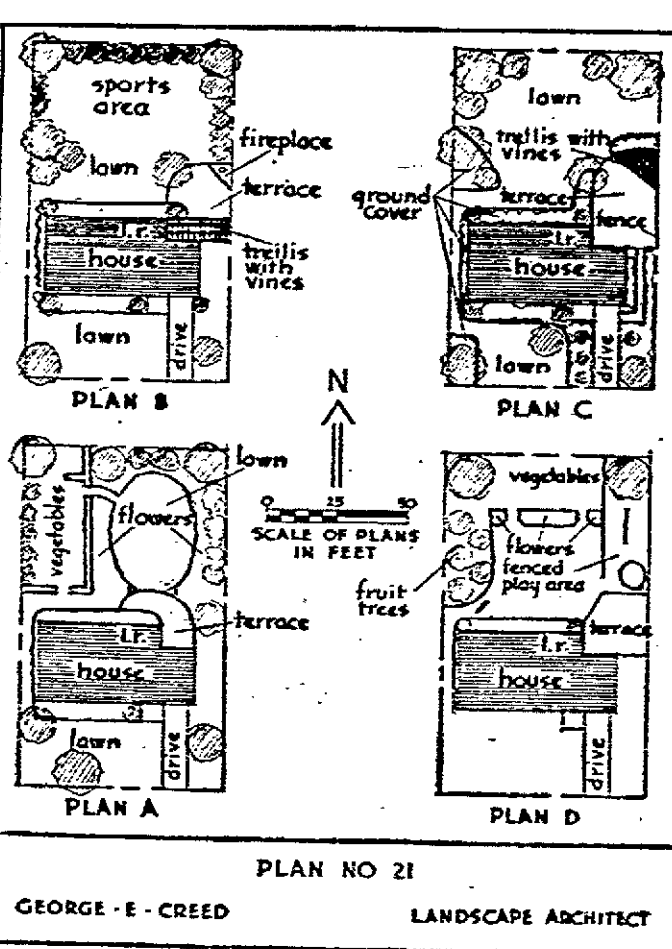

Madison—Water in the wrong place is the biggest reason why house paint troubles develop. Ed Bruns, home engineer at the University of Wisconsin, says paint on the outside of a house can deteriorate from vapor troubles in tightly built, insulated houses because of: Lack of vapor barriers, rain or other water that gets behind wood siding, improper first priming of wood, repainting too soon, repainting with a different type of paint.

If your paint wears away too fast, if it blisters and then peels, or if it quickly cracks, curls or scales, then you have trouble. Once the trouble sets in, go slow, says Bruns. Premature repainting to cover up unsightly paint failure only makes matters worse. The coating will be built up to a dangerous thickness on places where paint did not come off. Once that happens there is no recourse but to remove all paint down to bare wood and start over.

Find Trouble
Before repainting, find the probable cause of the trouble. Is it moisture from inside the house or from rainwater penetration of joints outside?

If it's moisture inside the house, you'll need a better vapor barrier. Two coats of aluminum paint plus two coats of decorative oil-base paint are best for sand-finish plaster. On smooth plaster use primer and sealer plus one coat of decorative oil-base paint. For gypsum board two coats of rubber base paint appear effective.

If water is getting inside walls from the roof, find the

Slopes, Shape of Land
Plus Its Vegetation

BY GEORGE E. CREED

The proper time to think about planning property is before you buy it—first study its possibilities, and limitations. You will avoid many troubles if you consider such elements as how the property drains, how it slopes, what vegetation exists on it and, in some instances, how it is shaped.

If you already have undeveloped property with a house on it or developed property you intend to change, plan now to get started with work in the spring. Without a plan of some sort, be it simply a sketch such as one of those shown here, your property may "grow like Topsy," and you will be forever changing it in an effort to get what you want. A plan is a guide. It will save you time, trouble, effort and money.

List Requirements
Your planning should start with a list of your requirements. Based on a study of your family pattern of living. Having decided on such a list, you are in a position to plan intelligently. The sketches shown here indicate how the same property might be developed in four different family needs and viewpoints. Sketch A, for example, emphasizes flowers, vegetables and shrubs. A layout of this sort requires much maintenance. It would be suitable only for a family with time, energy and enthusiasm for gardening.

For Sports Lovers

Plan B, on the other hand, would appeal to a family that is casually interested in work about the yard but more than casually interested in sports and outdoor entertaining. The major maintenance item here would be lawn mowing.

Plan C illustrates a layout suited to the family with no interest in gardening but desiring an easy-to-maintain property that would be attractive. Here even the task of lawn mowing has been reduced by the use of large areas of ground cover.

Plan D represents an all-around type of development with space for flowers, vegetables and fruit trees, a terrace and an enclosed children's play area large enough for a plastic wading pool, sand box and limited play equipment.

Tribe Threatens To Take Back Market Square

Brantford, Ont., — The Six Nations Indians are threatening to take back city hall.

Aroused by reports that the Brantford city council intends to put the hall and surrounding market square on the block, the hereditary chiefs of the nearby Six Nations reservation told their lawyer Wednesday to begin a study of land titles and the treaty under which they granted the square to Brantford in 1851.

The chiefs say their ancestors gave the land on the understanding that it would be used only as a market square. If it stops being used for that, they contend, it must revert to them.

One source said, however, that though the Indians have always believed a written treaty granting the land exists, it has never been found.

City officials claim no bar to the sale exists as long as the city's taxpayers vote for it. They cited a 1920 act of the Ontario legislature permitting market square's sale or use for other purposes if another market square is found and the change is approved by ballot of those entitled to vote on money questions.

Mayor Max Sherman announced Tuesday the city had received an offer of more than $1 million from an unnamed investment firm. Sherman said part of the money would be used to build a new city hall, a long-discussed project, and the market would be moved to a new site.

Marion Davies Gives $1½ Million Donation

Los Angeles — A check for $1½ million was given to the UCLA medical center yesterday by former actress Marion Davies.

UCLA officials described the gift as the biggest cash contribution ever received by the university. It will be used to add to the medical center a children's wing to be named after Miss Davies.

Life With 'Irresistible' Charmer Bound to be Nightmare, Says Ann

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I've got a problem that's old as the hills to you, but to me—it's new. Please help.

I'm 23 and have been going with a fellow 27. He has one divorce and one annulment to his credit (?). When he drinks too much, which is often, he gets loud and obnoxious. He has insulted some of my relatives and my dad can't stand him.

He's always sorry but when he turns on his irresistible charm I forgive him. He buys me beautiful gifts to make up for his bad behavior, and everything is lovely—until he loses his temper or gets crooked again.

I've slammed the door on him a dozen times and told him not to call me any more. But somehow he does, and I get talked into trying again. I know life with him would be a nightmare, but I can't seem to get away from him. What can I do?—ERMINA

What do you mean you "can't seem to get away from him"? Does he carry an ether cone?

It's this kind of ambivalence (look it up, kids) that makes nervous wrecks out of people. You've made up your mind that life with him would be a nightmare, so why do you let him buy you off with beautiful gifts? Give him the air once and for all. This would be the loveliest present you could give yourself.

DEAR ANN: I'm a former school teacher, 29 years old.

All-day festivities will be held Sunday at the home of a daughter and son-in-law. Mr. and Mrs. Erwin Kielgas, Hilbert, will be held from 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and dinner will be served at 5:30. In the evening, movies will be shown and cards will be played.

Friends and relatives will include the couple's two daughters, Mrs. Harold Hurst, Kaukauna, and Mrs. Kielgas, and seven grandchildren. Nuptial attendants for the couple also will be present, including Henry Dittman, Bonduel, Mrs. Reinhardt Schultz, Iowa, Mrs. Howard Brandt, Detroit, Mich. and Herman Becker, Elk River, Minn.

Mr. Dittman 73 was employed at Kaukauna Machine corporation prior to his retirement three years ago. Mrs. Dittman will celebrate a double anniversary Sunday, Jan. 8 also being her 55th birthday.

I cannot bear to think of a life without a family. I've pleaded with him to reconsider, but he says his mind is made up. Capacity Audience Entertained

Canadian Players Bring Vitality To Shakespeare's Tragic Othello

BY JAY JOSLYN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The Canadian Players staged an energetic production of Shakespeare's "Othello" at the Lawrence Memorial chapel Thursday night to a capacity audience that was captivated by the Bard's tract against jealousy.

The program notes contended the Players are "bold exponents of the exciting vitality of contemporary Canadian Theatre," whose "unique productions" have won them wide acclaim.

The interpretation presented Thursday was different from the traditional Othello was almost pathological in the hands of Tony van Bridge and Max Helpmann's Iago was more Vespersophian than Machiavellian.

Traditional or not, the production filled the purpose Shakespeare intended. First and last, the Bard was an entertainer. He was an actor, playwright working in the most competitive time imaginable. He would have approved the production staged at the chapel—it was fine entertainment.

Examine Evil Man

Shakespeare's "Othello" was an examination of a completely evil man working on a hero with a tragic flaw. The subtleties and machinations of Iago have made the role one of the favorites for actors through the ages. Othello on the other hand, is a role of somber elegance climaxing in a fine showcase for histrionics.

What the Players' Iago lacked in subtlety was made up in fun. No Scratch played more cunningly on an audience than did Helpmann. His contempt was transparent and he accepted success flippantly. The audience loved him.

Although Van Bridge brought quiet strength and dignity to Othello in the early scenes, his sudden and complete downfall in the second act caused some concern over the actor's well being.

Alan Nunn's Rodrigo was handsome and earnest. He and Helpmann worked well together needing only a different setting to fit perfectly into the roles of Sir Andrew Aguecheek and Sir Toby Belch.

'Othello' Play Cast Proves Genial Guests At Appleton Party

BY SUSAN NOYES
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

It was a delightful two hours spent late Thursday afternoon with the Canadian Players of Stratford, Ontario.

The 16-man troupe was generous, genial and somewhat eloquently overwhelming at a cocktail and dinner party prior to its performance of Shakespeare's "Othello" Thursday night at Lawrence Memorial chapel.

They looked like any group of Appleton party-goers at the gathering held by Mrs. John Duval and her son, Albert Gardner, at their home at 506 E. Atlantic street. The men wore casual sport coat and slack outfits and the young women were gowned in pretty, neat dresses, little jewelry and used ordinary makeup.

Mrs. Duval, an ardent promoter of both Shakespeare and the Players, became acquainted with the troupe at Stratford and her son have made an annual pilgrimage to the Ontario city to view the Shakespearean summer festival, since its opening in the summer of 1953.

Cast's 'Yul Brunner'

Verbal pokes were exchanged; Tony Van Bridge who had shaved his head for the part of Othello, was pointed out as "our Yul Brunner." His shiny pate razored daily was considered "used to shaving by now like any beard."

Clipped English accents occasionally rose from the throats of both British and Canadian natives form the repertoire company, which has also employed "one or two Americanisms in the past."

Perhaps to point up this timelessness, the Players dressed their production in a wide variety of costumes ranging from 15th century Florentine through the First Napoleonic Empire to modern dress. For good measure, the men wore trousers smacking remarkably of Beau Brummel. Van Bridge's shaven-pated Othello was uncomfortably reminiscent of Hollywood's king of Siam.

The production was staged in a set piece resembling a shadow box and serving effectively all the varied locales of the play.

Regardless of the uniqueness of the production, the Players served their purpose and proved — if it needs proving — Shakespeare is good theater; something to be played and enjoyed often.

bers double as their own stage hands.

Professional ties with English and the Canadian Players of land are deep; the names of Christopher Plummer, Shiohan McKenna, Lawrence Olivier and activities at the Old Vic are sprinkled in conversation.

The Players is a young group — both in average age and in inception: it was begun in 1954 by Tom Patterson, guiding light of the festival at Stratford, and Douglas Campbell, noted Scotch actor. Three-fourths of the present troupe members have appeared at the summer event.

Gain Experience

An intent young man, Peter Hale, who identified himself like the others by cast name, was enthusiastic about playing with such festival notables as Plummer.

"You study the role, decide how you'd play it, then watch him and compare the two performances. Somewhere in the middle is what you want, the creative part."

The players, who are currently on a seven-months tour of mostly college locals, are also presenting Bernard Shaw's drama, "Man and Superman." Bruce Swerdlager, business manager or "the important man who signs our checks," explained what choice was dictated somewhat by productions being planned by campus groups.

"Writing ahead we found several were giving 'Othello,' and Shaw is always good." Number of roles in a particular play also limits the troupe which is transported by bus.

Barrage of Questions

En route to an Appleton supper club, the merry group had a barrage of questions "Why did everyone refer to the Lawrence stage as a chapel, when it was listed as an auditorium?"

Crossing Memorial Drive bridge Mervyn "Butch" Blake who played Brabantio, demanded the Fox River's name. Its Indian heritage intrigued Mrs. van Bridge, who is "holidaying" with her husband. From the back seat, a male voice complained of the lack of time off to explore such cities as Appleton.

It was a ravenous group which plunged into hearty dinner fare of steak, baked potato and salad. One young man, who eagerly accepted an extra salad, commented on the absence of van Bridge and Max Helpmann, the play's infamous Iago.

Passed Up Dessert

"They don't eat before a performance," he stated and several companions chimed in professional reasons — "affects breathing, they feel groggy."

Mrs. van Bridge, who terms herself as her husband's worst critic, revealed she does not watch her husband rehearse. "It makes him nervous." On a shoestring because of a hired housekeeper taking charge of the bridge home, the vivacious woman was looking forward to a shopping excursion — including after Christmas sales.

The arrival of a dessert tray prompted a quick time check by Swerdlager. Reluctantly, the tempting sweets were passed up for an impending curtain.

Tour's end in late spring will give many of the Players a six-week vacation prior to beginning rehearsal for the 1958 Stratford festival. Others, who will seek radio and stage jobs, are looking forward to next year's trip. A proposed new contract may offer cast members longer-term employment and paid vacation time.

Designed for Dinner and Dancing are these two beautiful evening costumes displayed in the high couture fashion parade being presented this week in New York. Left, designer Jo Copeland has embellished the hemline of this black pompon taffeta dinner dress with a dramatic overlay of white lace applique. The frock is cut low in back, has a high front neckline and full pleated skirt. Shown right is a striking gown in white peau d'ange by Maurice Rentner. Ashapely foot and ankle is revealed by the uneven hemline of the dress. Turquoise faille fashions the tight middy vest. (AP Wirephotos)

American Figure Triumphant

Males Can Stop Huffing; Milady to Look Womanly

BY DOROTHY ROE
AP Women's Editor

The famous American figure will emerge triumphant even over the threat of the gunnysack silhouette, it became clear today to some 200 fashion editors attending final sessions of a crowded week of spring style previews.

Such designers as Oleg Cassini, Jo Copeland, Jane Derby, Tina Leser, Suzy Perette and Andrew Arkin proved to the visiting press that even the sack dress can't keep a good designer down. They tackled the problem in various ways.

Cassini, who has declared open war on the gunnysack, clings to his oft-stated credo that "The only purpose of a dress is to heighten the sex appeal of the wearer," and vows solemnly

"Never will I tamper with that most perfect of natural wonders, the female figure."

"Forget the Middle" Jo Copeland makes a bow to the chemise, but softens the blow by directing interest to neckline and hemline, advising the wearer to "forget the middle," says she.

"In the bright lexicon of American women, there is no such thing as the gunnysack."

When she shows chemise dresses they are subtly shaped, and are likely to have a dramatic collar or a pleated flounce at the hemline. She uses middy collars with telling effect, employs dramatic white accents on dark suits and dresses, shows suits with both boy and fitted jackets, the former with brass buttons and middy collars.

Miss Copeland, generally credited as the originator of the cocktail suit, likes black and white for informal evenings—black taffeta with white lace, black chiffon over white, black organza with white faille bands.

Arkin Flatters Figure Andrew Arkin, who startled buyers earlier in the season by opening his show with models wearing paper sacks, shows the chemise in assorted versions, but always smoothly fitted at shoulder, bust and hipline.

Nevel in his spring collection are blouse-jacket suits which look strictly 1933 but are highly flattering.

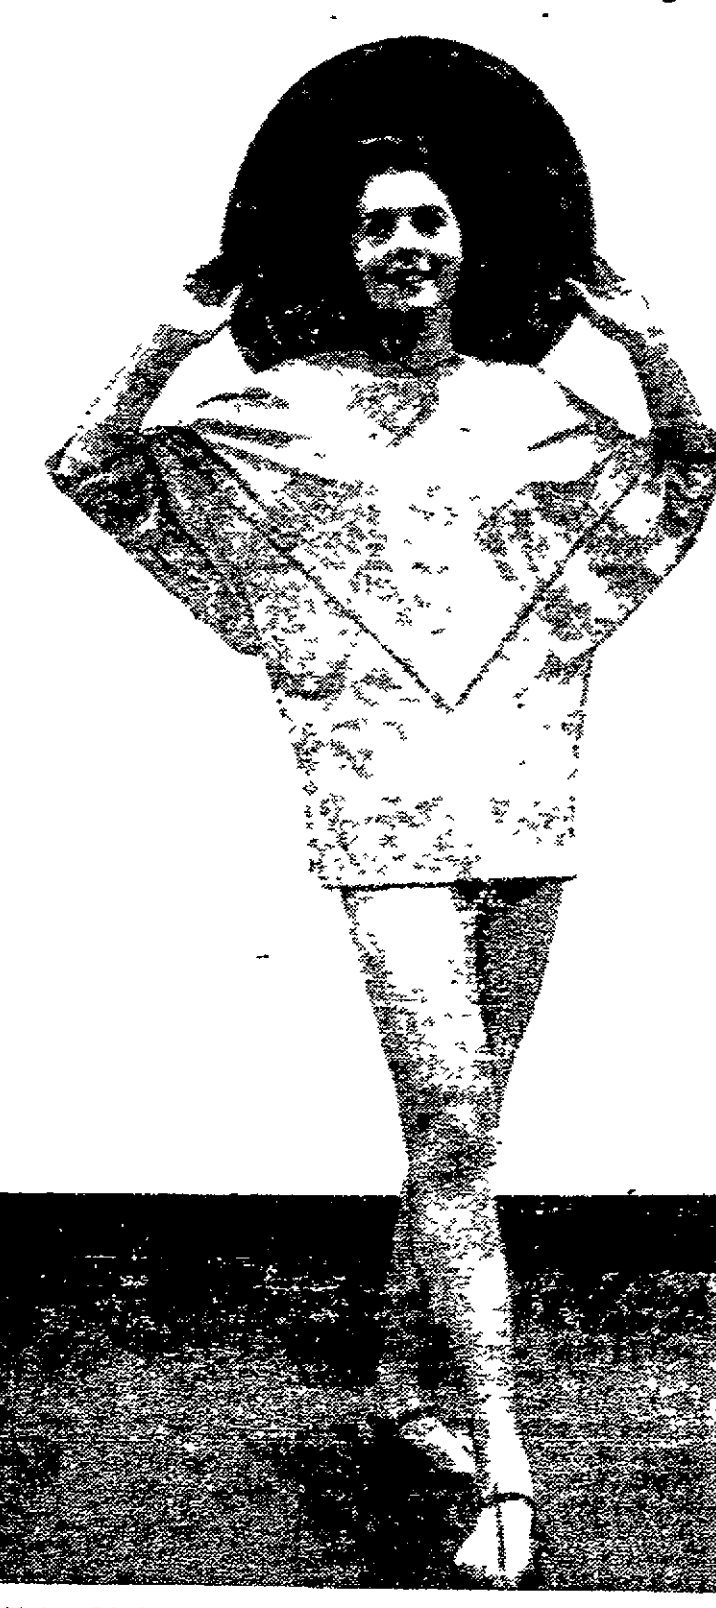

Young Arkin, who works with his father, Leonard Arkin in a father-and-son organization turning out both regular and petite sizes, has become known for his swift adaptations of Paris fashions, and for transforming an extreme French silhouette into something American women can wear with enthusiasm, says he.

"I devote much of my time to studying American girls, and I know what they can wear. It's a nice business." So women can stop worrying and husbands can stop storming. The new styles for spring won't scare anybody with women will still look womanly, despite the gunnysack.

Beauty Touch of Color Perks Up Looks

By Marian Matthews

When you fall into the habit of wearing drab winter clothes you may feel your beauty is fading at a quick pace. It will too, if you get into such a frame of mind.

Given your appearance not only with some new warmer toned make-up but with some color in your wardrobe.

That old trick of placing white near the face works a wonderful change for many women. The skin may seem clearer and if make-up colors are right you'll have a glow that radiates a new liveliness others are quick to admire. Perhaps you feel a pale pink is better at the throat. If so, choose some soft chiffon scarfs or silks to tuck into necklines of suits and dresses.

Once the first of the year is passed, there's a look ahead to spring so begin your salute to the new season with some flattering new neckwear on those black and drab gray dresses you've been wearing. This and a change to make-up with a warmer pink undertone will give you a new look that boosts your spirits.

We all need a lift of some sort after the first of the year. That physical slump which often precedes a cold or worse might be avoided if you begin to take your vitamins once again. They will help your complexion, too.

PSC to Reopen Hearing On Neenah Rail Crossing

Commission Says Four Problems Still Unresolved After September Meeting

Neenah — The public service commission will reopen hearings on Neenah's petition for a grade crossing over the Chicago and North Western and Soo Line railroads shortly, it was announced Thursday by Edward T. Kaveny, secretary of the commission. No definite date has been set. The city has asked to build the crossing about a half mile south of Cecil street where the two railroads run side by side. A street, as yet unnamed, is to be opened there to serve the new Neenah Foundry plant, the Marathon general office, and Overly's, Inc., a sheet metal fabricating firm. The new street is to be parallel to Cecil street and run from Byrd avenue to the tracks and Harrison street. The PSC heard representatives of the city and the two railroads at a public hearing here on Sept. 13 in announcing that hearings would be reopened. The commission said that four problems remain to be resolved. The PSC must determine whether the crossing is to be at grade level or whether an overpass or underpass would be more suitable. If the crossing is at grade level, the commission must determine whether or not gates would be needed in addition to the usual protection signals. May After Street The commission also said that, should permission to build the crossing be granted, it might be necessary to move or relocate or close Harrison street (Dixie road). The crossing as proposed by the city would be about three fourths of a mile north of the intersection of Dixie road with Highway 41. The PSC also said it must determine the apportionment, if any, of the cost of opening the crossing, installing the signals and any necessary highway work. Costs may be divided among the city, the county and the railroads. There was no mention in Thursday's PSC order of moving the crossing several hundred feet away from the proposed spot in order to cross fewer tracks. This possibility had been suggested by the commission examiner at the September meeting. Neither railroad has expressed any objection to the proposed crossing.

2 Enter Race For 10th Ward Alderman's Job

Dr. J. M. Donovan, Harold Young Seek Neenah Election

Neenah — A race for the post of Tenth ward alderman began this morning when Dr. John M. Donovan took out nomination papers. Harold Young, present Second ward alderman, took out papers for the Tenth ward post Thursday afternoon.

Young lives in the new Tenth ward which was created when the city was redistricted into 10 wards last month. He is presently a member of the council's health and welfare committee and secretary of the street and sanitation committee. He is also serving on a special citizens' committee studying the needs of Kimberly Junior High school, to which he was appointed by the mayor.

Young, 46, 413 Church street, has been a resident of Neenah for 16 years. He is originally from Appleton. He is married and has two sons, both of them students in the Neenah school system. Young works as an art specialist for Marathon, his employer for the last 13 years.

Dr. Donovan, a dentist in Neenah since 1911, lives at 301 E. Franklin avenue. He practices with his son, Dr. John L. Donovan, at 211 E. Wisconsin avenue. Before 1911 Dr. Donovan lived in Sturgeon Bay.

The doctor served as chairman of the park and recreation board for 20 years from 1924 to 1944. He also served the police and fire commission during the 1920's. Dr. Donovan, 75, said today that he took out nomination papers at the request of several neighbors and that his decision to run was not definite.

The Tenth ward race leaves the First, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Eighth wards without candidates for alderman. Candidates must file nomination papers with 10 signatures collected in their wards on or before an. 28 with the city clerk. Five wards are still without candidates for the post of county supervisor, and no candidate has announced for the school board post presently held by Roy J. Sund.

Aldermen, supervisors, school board members and mayor will be elected on April 1.

String Orchestra to Perform at Madison

Neenah — This city's fifth grade string orchestra will be the first such group to play at the University of Wisconsin Midwinter Music clinic when the annual session takes place at Madison on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The Neenah delegation, made up of 63 violinists, cellists and bass players, will be the first group from this city in more than 20 years to play at the annual workshop of music teachers and college students.

For director Robert Gruetzman the appearance of the orchestra at the clinic is a definite achievement. The orchestra was formed of fourth grade students early last year. Plans now call for fourth graders to be added to the orchestra each fall, while the students from the previous years remain in the group. Thus next year there will be sixth and fifth graders on the concert group and a new group of fourth graders learning to play the strings. Within three years the orchestra will include members from four grades in seven schools.

All the violins in the concert orchestra belong to the students. The five bass violins and the seven cellos, however, belong to the school, since they are too expensive to expect parents to purchase.

Menne's Idea Gruetzman, who came to Neenah from Black River Falls a year and a half ago, started the string orchestra program at the urging of Supt. of School Harold B. Menne.

The 63 performers will travel to Madison early Monday morning by school bus and private automobile. A group of parents is also attending the program. The students will arrive in the morning, and perform in the Memorial union on the teachers and college music students in Wisconsin. The Neenah string orchestra was started as a fourth grade program last year by Robert Gruetzman, who also directs the senior high school band. The string orchestra will be expanded in years to come to include students in grades five through eight. A new group of fourth graders will be started on the violins, basses and cellos each year.

The group will play "First Choral" by Fred Muller, "On Wings of Song" by Mendelssohn, "America the Beautiful" by Ward, "Indian Princess" by Weber and "Overture" by Muller. For the last number 11 brass players from the senior band will accompany the strings.

The violinists in the group are James Mittlestad, Antoine Altman, Kenneth Peterson, Kathy Pingel, Gail Hoen, Barbara Olinger, Jeanne Miller, Carrie Speakes, Polly Koerwitz, Peter Graverson, Prudence Ducommun, Ormin Steif, Danny Hoertl, Gilbert Mueller, Bruce Martin, Robert Braun, Peter Hanneman, Anne Shockley, Darlene Prentice, Richard Svedeman, Greg Brabbee, Kristin Peterson, Eric Larsen, Tom Reinke, Judy Erickson, Clifford Piirto, Francis Brehm, Kathryn Jensen, Lynda Schubert, Bill Casper, Marla Ross, Christine Zick, Mike James, Roger Radant, Marshall Hanke, Marjorie Wege, Patricia Nelson, Caroline Umlandt, Marcia Sloan, Greg Lucas, Ellen Lautenschlager, Barbara Prestridge, Richard Erdman, Nancy Scholz, Kathy Angermeyer, Barbara Boneyk, Alice Dunwiddie, Jane Pansch, Carla Brill, Patricia Schroeder, Penny Rudolph, Mike McIntyre, John Nelson, and Richard Moen.

The cello players are David Blake, Robert Roberts, Danny Miracle, Jackie Smith, Scott Sperka, Jane Rumberger and Eddy Began. The string basses are played by Laura Law, Wenda Peterson, Ray Bletzinger and Lee and David Stark.

Badgers Duel Bucks In Television Game

UW Shoots For Initial Big 10 Win

Madison — Coach "Bud" Foster held up two fingers Thursday as he counted the troubles of his Wisconsin basketball team. One finger meant injuries, the other the failure of sophomores to meet expectations.

"But we think we're coming out of it," the veteran coach said as he anticipated Saturday afternoon's nationally televised game with Ohio State's Buckeyes in the Badger field house.

Wisconsin was beaten by Illinois and Michigan in its only Big Ten starts. In losing to Michigan last Monday night the team had a 31-30 lead at the intermission, but fell apart in the second half, getting only 18 points to lose 70-49.

Same Combination In getting ready for Ohio State, Foster said "we can't plan anything different, but hope to come around on our shooting."

He plans to open with the same combination that started against Michigan—Bob Litzow and Bob Barneson, Ray Gross, and Brian Kulas and Walt Holt.

"They have been looking good in practice and are starting to hit again," Foster said. "Litzow, for example, scored on seven of eight shots in the closing part of the workout and it looks like he has shaken his bruised hip."

"These boys played fine basketball against Rice and Butler," Foster said, "so if they start to believe in themselves, I know we can beat the Buckeyes."

Hit hardest by the injuries were a pair of sophomores, Sam Barnard and John Stack. Barnard made a tremendous impression in his first game as a Badger against South Dakota State. But he suffered an ankle injury, and has not returned to the team.

Stack, one of Wisconsin's big men at 6 foot, 7, was out with a twisted knee, but returned to practice this week. But Foster feels he won't be ready for Ohio State, or for Illinois at Champaign on Monday night.

UW's Young Named To NCAA Committee

The appointment was made at the NCAA's annual convention.

Wants to Stay in Game

'It's Kind of Rough,' Says 'Liz' of Ouster

Los Angeles—Davey Moore, 128, Springfield, Ohio, stopped Victor Manuel Quijano, 126, Mexico City, 9.

Blackbourn was fired Monday and replaced by Ray "Scooter" McLean. The team agreed to pay Blackbourn the $25,000 for the last season on his contract.

In a television interview (WTMJ-TV) Blackbourn said, "I put everything I had into the job and it's kind of rough having the rug pulled out from under you."

"A Loyal Type" Blackbourn added he was now at the point where he does not allow anything in athletics to bother him.

"He's a fine guy, a loyal type of fellow," Blackbourn said of McLean, his former assistant. "He'll get along."

Blackbourn said the Packers have some outstanding players returning from service in time for the 1958 season and added that the team should do better than in the past if it is not handicapped with too many injuries.

The Packers, with a 3-9 record last season, finished last in the Western conference.

Blackbourn said that if the Packers get a few breaks in 1958 they will improve in the win-loss column. He said, however, that he was not predicting a championship.

The former Packer coach said he would like to stay in football or something close to it, but that he felt he could make a more worthwhile contribution in the professional ranks, though he would not avoid the professional game.

Blackbourn declined any comment on the management system, employed by the Green Bay team in which the club is guided by a 45-member board of directors.

Ted Williams Named Top Athlete of '57 By Associated Press

Beats Out Burdette to Win Honor For First Time in Long Career

By The Associated Press

Ted Williams, king of the batters at the age of 39, today was named the outstanding male athlete of the year for 1957 in the annual Associated Press year-end poll.

It was the first time in his long, stormy and dramatic career that the tall Boston Red Sox slugger was chosen for the honor, one of the great prizes in sports.

The recognition came seven weeks after he was nosed out by Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees for the "most valuable player" award of the American league.

Basilio Third In the AP poll, Williams won over Milwaukee pitcher Lew Burdette, the star of the World Series, with middleweight boxing champion Carmen Basilio third.

Mantle, winner of the AP's athlete of the year poll for 1956 and the American league's MVP for 1956 and 1957, finished in a tie for thirteenth this year with only one first place designation and 14 points.

Williams received 85 first place votes from the 214 sports writers and sportscasters who participated in the poll, and 434 points. Points were counted on a basis of three for first, two for second and one for third.

Burdette, who hurled three complete, winning games to beat the Yankees in the series, collected 54 first places and 226 points.

Henry Aaron of the Braves received 24 points.

Cardinals Pick Frank Ivy as Head Coach

Former End Brings Winning Coaching Record From Canada

Chicago — Now that the Chicago Cardinals have plucked 41-year-old Frank Ivy from the Canadian Football league as their head coach, the Cardinals have a new head coach.

Ivy, who was appointed coach Thursday night succeeding the resigned Ray Richards, faces a stiff challenge — a challenge that has seen eight Cardinals coaches shuffle out of Chicago in the last 10 years.

But, Ivy says he's used to winning and that's enough for Cardinal managing director Walt Wolfner.

The "Winning Touch" In announcing Ivy's appointment, Wolfner told newsmen: "Ivy's the man we wanted since Richards resigned Saturday and we feel he'll do a fine job. He's got the winning touch and it's bound to rub off on the players. He's a hard-working coach. He's the answer to our problems."

Ivy, who played six years as a top flight defensive end with the Cards intermittently from 1940-47, said he had a "lot of work" ahead of him in his new job.

In four years of coaching in the pay-for-play ranks, Ivy, a native of Stratford, Okla., won four Canadian western divisional titles and grabbed the All-Canadian championship three years running — 1954-55-56.

Ivy played college football at Oklahoma.

Pebble Beach, Calif. — Bob Rosburg, one of golf's great putters, headed into the rain-threatened second round of the $50,000 Big Crosby tournament today with a 2-stroke lead and a tough course facing him.

Rosburg, sinking putts up to 30 feet, fashioned a 7-under-par 65 over the Monterey Peninsula Country club layout as 280 amateurs and pros tackled two courses.

Bob goes over the second one, Cypress Point, for his second round and judging from opening scores there, he faces a tougher assignment. Eight of the nine tourney-leading scores were shot over Monterey, where the winds and occasional rains didn't bother as much.

Kollar Wins Starting Berth For Arena Tilt

Milwaukee — The Marquette basketball season has reached the stage where the Warriors are getting a chance to avenge earlier defeats, and that will be their task when they entertain Louisville Saturday night.

Defeated, 73-65, by Louisville on Dec. 18, the Warriors have since come on better days and may even the season slate with the Cardinals in their arena meeting. Louisville has beaten Marquette five straight times and holds a 10-2 lead in the series.

The Warriors have won three of their last four games while Louisville broke a 3-game losing streak by defeating St. Louis, 67-55, Wednesday night. The Cardinals have a 6-5 record for the season.

Kollar Improves One of the major contributors to the Marquette improvement has been Jim Kollar, a 6-foot sophomore from Farrell, Pa. He has been a spark in the last two Warrior victories.

He showed little as Marquette lost its opener to Illinois and then rested on the bench as Marquette lost four straight. An injury had kept him out of action until the post-Christmas Motor City tournament at Detroit.

His first real chance came against Columbia in the tourney consolation game and he scored five baskets, four of them on the fast break. He added five more from the floor as Marquette beat Loyola last weekend. In fact against the Chicago team he kept the Warriors.

Brown to Get Good Look at QB Draftees

Cleveland Choices Will Start for North, South '11s'

Mobile, Ala. — Saturday's ninth annual Senior bowl game is made to order for South Coach Paul Brown in at least one respect:

He'll get a comparative look at two quarterbacks he'll probably be seeing a lot of later on. Both signal-callers have been drafted by his Cleveland Browns.

Brown has picked Arkansas George Walker, a 1956 Cleveland draft choice, as his No. 1 quarterback.

Ninowski Starts
North coach Joe Kuharich, whose Washington Redskins have only two draftees in the ninth annual All-Star game as compared with five for the Browns, will use Michigan State's Jim Ninowski as his starting quarterback. Ninowski was Cleveland's fourth draft pick last fall.

One of the north's halfbacks will be Washington's top draft choice, Mike Sommer of George Washington. The other Redskins draftee is Tennessee's Bill Anderson, who will play safety for the South squad.

The 50 college seniors taking part, 30 of whom have been drafted by pro clubs, turn professional in the game. Members of the winning squad receive $500 each, the losers $400. NBC will televise the clash, blacking out an area within 100 miles of Mobile.

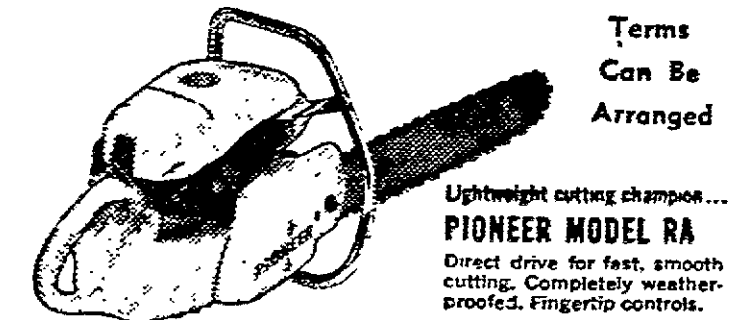

Kickoff is at 2 o'clock, (CST).

Time Out MU Will Meet Louisville '5'

Having their own gym to play in this season has keyed one of Fox Cities area high school basketball team to a remarkable about-face after a disastrous 1956-57 campaign.

Winner of just two games in 19 starts during 1956-57, the Iowa High school quintet is currently galloping along with a 7-1 overall record (5-1 in the Central Wisconsin conference).

The big difference? According to Coach William Deeth "having a gym of our own has made the kids want to play ball this season."

Thrilled By New Gym
Last season, Deeth's first as a coach after having graduated from La Crosse State college the previous year, the Iola club practiced and played its games in the Manawa high gym — 12 miles from Iola. This necessitated Deeth's driving his club in a school bus to Manawa for practice sessions which usually didn't start until about 6 o'clock, after the Wolves' practice ended.

Needless to say, this routine played havoc with the Iolans' eating schedule. "Most of the boys ate a lunch before practice and one afterwards," Bill remembers.

The players are thrilled with their new gym (seating about 750) which was completed in time for graduation last June.

The only loss this season for the current Central Wisconsin conference co-leaders was to Wittenberg, 60-55, when Iola played without 6-5 Gene Voie, who missed nearly three full games with a sprained ankle, is the club's No. 2 scorer behind 6-1 Gary Larson.

Larson has been averaging about 18 points a game, Voie about 15.

Both, members of the Iola junior varsity team last year, acquired new-found poise and coordination over the off-season. Other starters are 6-1 guard Bill Dorrude, 6-0 forward Gene Morton and 5-7 1/2 guard Tom Hoyard.

A 1952 graduate of Ashland High school, Deeth played football, basketball, baseball and participated in track on the prep level, making the all-conference team as a basketball player.

He played on the La Crosse State cage varsity one season and earned a pair of collegiate letters in cross-country.

A pair of deer were shot with bow and arrow in Outagamie county last weekend — by Hortonville's Milt Kollard and Neenah's Don Promer — bringing to 21 the total taken by archers in the second bow and arrow season here this season.

The season closes at sunset Sunday.

Another Neenah sportsman, Bill Hoffman, has caught a 4-pound, 2-ounce smallmouth bass through the ice on Lake

THURSDAY'S RESULTS:
Kaukauna 38, Roosevelt 34.
Kimberly 51, McKinley 27.
Menasha 35, Wilson 26.

A rangy Menasha High school freshman basketball team sprinted to an 11-2 first quarter lead and never fell behind in posting a 35-26 victory over Wilson in the losers' gym Thursday.

Although Wilson was playing without two regulars — Pete Katura, out with a leg injury, and Jeff Martin, on the shelf with a broken hand — the Appletonians held the powerful Jays well below their per-game average of 35.5.

Ex-Broker Denies Theft, Fund Misuse

Davidson's Attorney Enters Plea On 32 Separate Charges Today

Merle E. Davidson, charged with stealing and misusing $36,360, this morning denied all of the 32 individual charges.

Davidson, 46, former Appleton real estate broker, has been held in the Outagamie county jail since Dec. 26, when he was returned here from Milwaukee. Federal authorities deferred prosecution on forgery charges to allow Davidson's trial here.

Municipal Judge Oscar J. Schmieghe this morning set Davidson's bond at $25,000 and a preliminary hearing for 9:30 the morning of Jan. 23.

James R. Joyce, Davidson's attorney, said he may waive the preliminary hearing but not at this time. Joyce entered Davidson's plea for the former broker.

Davidson is charged with misusing $3,000 belonging to three clients and stealing $33,360 belonging to 29 other clients. In most cases, it is charged, Davidson took the money from his clients in the form of earned money or down payments on homes.

Lost Weight

He allegedly never gave the money to the sellers of the homes, nor allegedly did he return it to the prospective buyer.

Davidson appeared to have lost considerable weight since his last appearance in Appleton last fall and answered Judge Schmieghe's questions in a faint voice. His brown suit hung loosely as he slumped at the defendant's table. He strenuously objected to his picture being taken outside the courtroom.

Corporation Counsel Raymond Dohr assisted District Attorney George Greisch at the arraignment.

Davidson was held in Milwaukee on federal charges of forging applications for FHA insured loans. The federal bureau of investigation arrested Davidson in Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 9.

The former broker was held under $25,000 federal bond until federal authorities decided to defer prosecution until Outagamie county authorities prosecuted Davidson.

The real estate broker left his Appleton office at 1220 N. Oneida street, Sept. 28, leaving behind him at least 30 persons who had given him down payments on homes.

Present complaints charge him specifically with taking the money from 32 persons. The amounts range from $200 to $3,000, most $1,000 down payments.

Complaints, charging Davidson with theft, have been filed for the following:

Donald Whitman, 537 N. Division street, $1,150 check, June 15.

Lawrence J. Knoll, route 2, Menasha, $1,000 check, July 15.

Clarence and Jean M. Schiltz, 136 W. Lincoln street, Little Chute, $1,002.16 in checks, $302.16 refunded, $700 theft charged, July 12.

Ferdinand and Ethel Schultz, 509 E. Coolidge avenue, $2,105 in checks, $105 refunded, $2,000 total, Aug. 22 and 23.

The following three complaints against Davidson were issued Oct. 4, charging him with misusing clients' money. The charge was later amended to theft.

Carl R. and Anneliese Knaack, 30 1/2 W. Northland avenue, $500 check, July 17.

Fred Nack, Jr., 122 W. Sixth street, Kaukauna, $200 check, July 26.

Mrs. Irene Gertz, 112 W. Hancock street, $2,300 check, Sept. 8.

Merle E. Davidson, 46, left, is shown as Sheriff's Lt. Jack Zuelzke, right, brought him into municipal court this morning. Davidson is charged with stealing or misusing more than $36,000 given to him by clients while he was an Appleton real estate broker. Davidson's attorney entered an innocent plea for him this morning and Judge Oscar J. Schmieghe set bond at $25,000 with a hearing Jan. 23. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Denies He Put Pressure On Over Swim Pool

Park Sec. Jones Admits Mistake in Naming Hannemann

Ald. Harold H. Hannemann today emphatically denied he has ever exerted pressure on the park board over a site for the proposed outdoor swimming pool.

Arthur Jones, board secretary, backed him up, saying Hannemann has never talked with the board or individual board members about any site.

Jones, after Wednesday's park board meeting, said the board was turning over the southeast corner of Reid Municipal Golf course to the city for the pool reluctantly. He cited pressure by Hannemann.

Ald. Kenneth Priebe and Ald. Thomas Schneider.

Today, Jones said he mistakenly identified Hannemann as one of those urging the board to turn over the land. He said his reference should have been only to aldermen on the council's special pool committee.

Pool committeemen include Schneider, Priebe, Ald. Alvin Tews, Ald. William F. Ertl and Mayor Robert L. Roemer.

"I'm a golfer myself," said Hannemann, "and I wouldn't do anything to disturb the golf course."

Hannemann indicated he thinks the site is the best available. "I think this site is plenty big enough and includes ample space for cars, being across from the new school (James Madison Junior High school)," he said.

Central Location
"I would never have gone for the southwest corner of the course for the pool site, as was suggested earlier, but I think," he said, "the southeast corner is centrally located on the south side and a good site."

Hannemann said he is 100 percent for a pool on the south side "and the sooner it's built the better." He said he didn't care when the vote for building came.

Sources at city hall have said they believe the pool building vote won't come until after the election because some councilmen fear it could become an election issue.

Schneider reported Thursday the belief there would not be enough space for parking is erroneous. He said Green Bay pool was constructed in an area where there was plenty of land available and only 80,000 square feet were needed. The space available in the southeast corner of the course, he said, is something like 250 by 480 feet, or more than 100,000 square feet.

The north line of the pool site, he said, will be more than 100 feet from the No. 3 hole and a fence probably would be erected. A row of trees also would help set off the pool from the course.

Light Bulb Blinks Off, On in Wind; Firemen Called

A light bulb that was loose in its socket and blinking off and on in the wind resulted in a call to firemen about 11:50 Thursday night. The bulb was at the Bethany Evangelical Lutheran church under construction at 530 W. Parkway boulevard.

The campaign still is in its organization stages and other chairmen are yet to be announced. Last year the drive collected $15,485.44, with the money being used for direct patient services, public and professional education and research.

The January thaw Thursday was a welcome one — not only for people but for robins as well. Sherwood Russell, 1415 S. East street, reports seeing his first robin of the year Thursday, happily hopping under the comparatively warm sun. It obviously was one of those birds that winters in Appleton.

CC Won't Allow Sturgeon Spawning On 'Little Lakes'

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — The Wisconsin Conservation commission today refused to permit sturgeon spawning in Lakes Poygan, Winnebago and Koshong. The commission acted on advice of the state fisheries division which said that there is evidence of excessive harvesting of the big fish in the small lakes, tributary to Lake Winnebago. The usual Lake Winnebago sturgeon season will begin on Feb. 8 and continue to March 1.

Thomas Wirth, of the Oshkosh state fisheries station, reported that in 1956 more than 500 sturgeon were taken from the smaller lakes and that the harvest declined about one-third last year. He said state studies showed that the sturgeon are getting smaller and younger each year.

"The population is being slowly exploited," he said, recommending that a 2-year closed season be ordered.
